PRINCETON UNIVERSITY PRESS

THE GREEK TRADITION

By Paul Elmer More

A series of five studies on the origins and early environment of Christianity and on various modern revivals of philosophic religion. The author maintains that Greek literature from Plato to the council of Chalcedon in A.D. 451 is essentially a unit and follows at the center in a straight line. He calls this body of thought the "Greek Tradition."

These Books Will Sell!

The Quest of the Sea Otter

By Sabra Conner Net $1.50

RICH adventure across sweeping seas, and the vivid color of pioneer days make this romance for youth one of the most engrossing stories of all time. Leading librarians and critics place it on the same shelf as such immortal classics as "Treasure Island" and "Moby Dick." First large printing sold in a month.

The Gnome King of Oz

By Ruth Plumly Thompson Net $1.60

NO other series of books ever published has held such sustained popularity as have the Oz Books. Children not only love them, but hold the images of the characters in their hearts, for their own children to love in future years. This newest of the series will have an all-year sale as the other nineteen titles do.

Teepee Tales

By El Comancho Net $1.50

A COLLECTION, in the form of a single narrative, of real Indian, animal and outdoor stories, written by one of the most popular writers of this type in America. Fitting format and unique jacket give the volume all the earmarks of the unusual and salable. Illustrated by Charles Livingston Bull and the author.

The Little American Series

By Bertha M. Rhodes Net $.60 Each

THERE are six of these delightful little tales for small children—six books that each tell a story and at the same time teach the children how to play. They are written by a practical kindergartner, are well made, and illustrated attractively in bright color.

Alice and the Teenie Weenies

By William Donahey Net $1.00

ONE of the biggest value, most popular dollar juveniles. A picture in colors on every page, an attractive format and an eye catching jacket make this book stand out. It is uniform in format with the popular "Skeezix Books."

Miss Minerva's Scallywags

By Emma Speed Sampson Net $1.25

MISS MINERVA'S popularity is proven. The winsome quality of her humor, the quaint wholesomeness of the characters surrounding her, have held these books in the heart of readers for seventeen years. This newest of the series maintains all the fun that has gone before.

"Aw Hell" is a hit! A best seller! Proclaimed by press and public the best novel of the World War yet written.

Forthright, vivid fiction. New York Sun.—Painted with such realistic force that almost the drums of the ears ache as one reads. Nashville Banner.—Splendid fiction, absorbing reading. Pittsburgh Press.—A swift moving story with plenty of action. St. Louis Globe Democrat.—This absorbing novel will become a classic of war fiction. Oregon Sunday Journal.

List of Publications

Revised to
July 1, 1927

The Ronald Press Company
15 East 26th Street, New York, N. Y.

THE ARRANGEMENT of these brief descriptions, after the first outline of the journal, MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES, is alphabetic by author. The book publications are, so far as possible, of uniform style and size (5¾"x8½"). Each is thoroughly indexed. These publications are offered on the basis that they must be satisfactory. Any book may be returned for refund within five days after receipt, if not what is wanted. Orders from outside continental United States must be accompanied by cash plus 25c (per book) to cover shipping.

MANUFACTURING INDUSTRIES

A useful journal which covers thoroughly all essential problems of profitable manufacturing under highly competitive conditions. Articles are written for practical managers by men with practical experience. Material is not popularized, nor inspirational, but consists of actual cases with actual results, organized where possible into tables, charts, and diagrams. Meets standards of progressive establishments. Users need not be technically trained. Monthly, 50c per copy, $5.00 per year. Sample copy on request.

NEW BOOKS AND REVISED EDITIONS

Fourteenth Revised and Enlarged Edition

New Building Estimators' Handbook

By William Arthur

5 by 7¼ Inches 1048 Pages 467 Illustrations
600 Tables Bound in Flexible Fabrikoid
Gilt Edges Price $6.00

This standard guidebook for estimating building costs stands out as one of the most valuable "tools" ever offered to the building trades.

Actual cost records, with over 600 detailed tables, taken from residences, stores and flats, office buildings, warehouses, manufacturing buildings, railroad shops of all kinds, schools and other structures are to be found in this useful and comprehensive reference book.

One of the most valuable features of the book is the complete set of tables which cover all phases of estimating in the entire structural field.

In every sense the New Building Estimators' Handbook is an understandable, complete and up-to-date guide that may truthfully be regarded as a worthwhile contribution to the field of carpentry and building.

Third Revised and Enlarged Edition

Practical Structural Design In Timber, Steel and Concrete

By Ernest McCullough, C. E., Ph. D.

6 by 9 Inches 416 Pages 224 Illustrations
Substantially Bound in Cloth. Price $4.00

For the practical man—the man who has not spent years studying higher mathematics—this work gives a clear working knowledge of every detail of the subject. It is a complete practical treatise on the mechanics of materials, mechanics of structures and structural design, written in plain language, without troublesome mathematics. For the self-tutored man no better book has ever been written.

The simplicity of the mathematics used, together with the prominence given to graphical methods makes it as useful to the man who occasionally designs a building as to the detailer who has daily need for a reference book.

The problems of building construction are fully treated, from the design of the floor joist and small posts to long span trusses and the largest columns.

New Revised and Enlarged Edition

New Metal Worker Pattern Book

By George W. Kittredge and Associates
New Revised Edition, Including Some New Problems
By Frank X. Morio

9 by 11 Inches Cloth Bound 526 Pages
895 Illustrations Price $6.00

A complete course of instruction in the modern methods of developing and cutting patterns for all kinds of sheet metal work. The fundamental principles underlying practically every problem likely to come up in practice are so clearly explained that no knowledge of arithmetic or drawing is needed to understand these essentials and to apply them in the development of patterns by the parallel line, conical or flaring, and irregular or triangulation systems. It is an excellent book for home study for the apprentice as well as a practical work of reference for the mechanic, foreman and pattern cutter. The solution of some of the most difficult and unusual problems may be found almost at a glance. In this new edition many new problems have been added including problems for laying out automobile guards, fenders, skirts, hoods and other automobile sheet-metal parts.

Second Edition, Revised

Advertising the Retail Store

By Benjamin H. Namm

5¾ by 8¾ Inches Cloth 256 Pages
101 Illustrations Price $2.50

The only practical book on Retail Advertising written by a successful retailer, who spends some hundreds of thousands of dollars in advertising each year. The author is the active head of the firm of A. I. Namm & Son of Brooklyn, N. Y. one of the largest retail department stores in the country.

Chapters dealing with vital and important problems in advertising confronted by every retailer can be found in this book.

Students of advertising will find this book very interesting, as it covers every step in advertising from the advertising manager to the copywriter, to artist, to make-up man, to newspaper—followed in a very clear and concise manner.

Direct newspaper, indoor and outdoor, mail order business, window advertising, etc., are other phases dealt with.

A descriptive Text-Book Catalogue, giving terms for Examination and Introduction; an illustrated descriptive list of Popular Juveniles; Announcements and General Circulars—mailed to any address on application.

Charles Scribner's Sons are the agents for the United States for the Publications of T. & T. Clark, of Edinburgh, and for the Architectural Publications of B. T. Batsford, Ltd., of London, and are the headquarters for Musical Literature, etc., etc.

Charles Scribner's Sons are represented in Canada by The Copp, Clark Co., Limited, who carry a stock of Scribner Publications.

Importations are received regularly from London of Current and Standard Books in all Departments of Literature, and the Catalogue of Importations is constantly revised to include the Latest Foreign Publications.

Special attention is asked to their unequalled facilities for the importation of books Free of Duty, for Public Libraries, the rates in all cases being the most favorable and the utmost care and promptness being used in the execution of orders.

Charles Scribner's Sons in their Retail Department have a full stock of all the Current American and Foreign Books, and have special facilities for procuring such as are rare and scarce. A specialty is made of French books, both current and standard. Orders to import single books for customers are sent weekly and receive the most prompt attention.

Subscriptions received for SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE and for ARCHITECTURE, each published monthly with illustrations.

Charles Scribner's Sons, London, 168 Regent Street and 7 Beak Street, publish a number of the Scribner books and receive subscriptions for SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE and for ARCHITECTURE.

INTERNATIONAL CRITICAL COMMENTARY on the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments. Planned and for years edited by the late Prof. C. A. BRIGGS, D.D., in America, and Prof. S. R. DRIVER, D.D., and Rev. ALFRED PLUMMER, D.D., in Great Britain.

This Commentary is international and inter-confessional, and is free from polemical and ecclesiastical bias. It is based upon a thorough critical study of the original texts of the Bible, and upon critical methods of interpretation. It is designed chiefly for students and clergymen, and will be written in a compact style. Historical and Archaeological questions, as well as questions of Biblical Theology, are included in the plan of the Commentary, but not Practical or Homiletical Exegesis. The volumes constitute a uniform series.

A LADY IN WAITING TO QUEEN VICTORIA

Some Letters and a Journal of Lady Ponsonby

Edited by MAGDALEN PONSONBY

Here was a gay, high spirited, independent and intelligent young girl who was thrown into the most ponderous, sedate, prudish Court that ever existed in the history of the world. She kept open her eyes and ears, and formed views which were not in accordance with the traditions of the Court. She gives an intimate picture of life at Court. Few people knew Queen Victoria as did Lady Ponsonby.

Misalliances, Irregular and Secret Unions

SOME LEFT-HANDED MARRIAGES OF ROYALTY

By EDMUND B. D'AUVERGNE

Those of royal blood who indulged themselves in secret and irregular unions and misalliances stand out in bold relief on history's pages—and what piquant, entertaining reading their lives make! In the intermingling of royalty and commoner many a fire has been kindled which has burned brightly with intrigue, feuds, crusades, even wars. Romance, drama, tragedy have run a wild and colorful course.

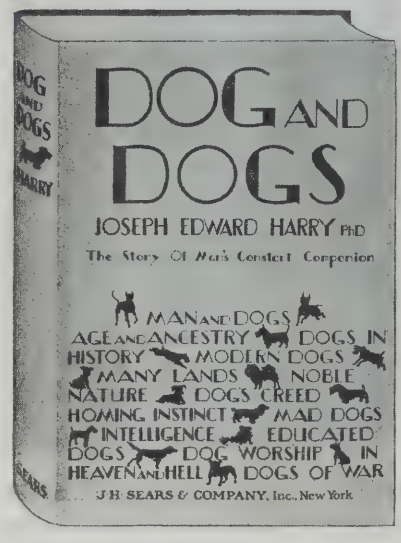
A Complete History of Man's Constant Companion
DOG AND DOGS

By JOSEPH EDWARD HARRY, Ph.D.



This book traces the history of the dog from the very earliest times that he was known to man, and tells of his development down through the ages to the present day. It tells the story of the dog in religious worship, in politics, in story and in song. This book comprehensively takes into consideration and describes various breeds of dogs, tracing back the intermingling of breeds and the source of the different breeds.

An unusual feature is the great number of dog stories which Professor Harry has gathered for his book from the literature of the world, both ancient and modern.

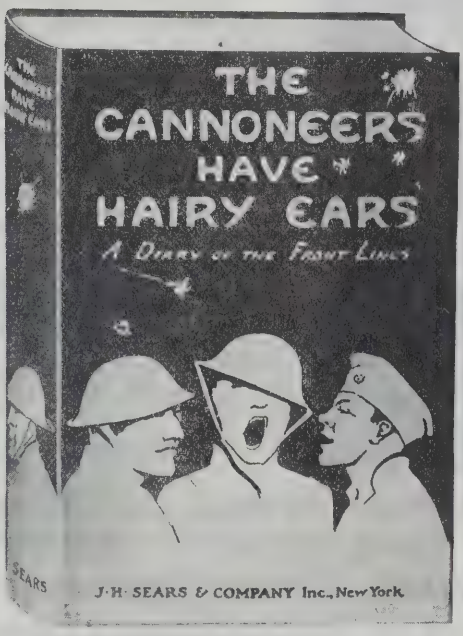
A Diary of the Front Lines

THE CANNONEERS HAVE HAIRY EARS

ANONYMOUS



A Vivid Picture of the Fighting Man in Action

This volume is a vivid record of the artillery in the Great War. Rough, frank, pungent, it portrays the real War in the front trenches, with all the actual bloody fighting and its philosophy peculiar to itself.

This might be considered a companion volume to "Wine, Women and War" (which is still a best seller) although not written by the same anonymous author. It is told from a different point of view—that of the active fighting man. "Wine, Women and War" was a pungent, satirical, frank, disillusioned diary of life behind the lines, while "The Cannoneers Have Hairy Ears" is a vivid, heart-rending view of the soldier who looked death in the face every hour of the day, and who saw lives snuffed out with as little concern as one snips off dandelion heads in the fields.

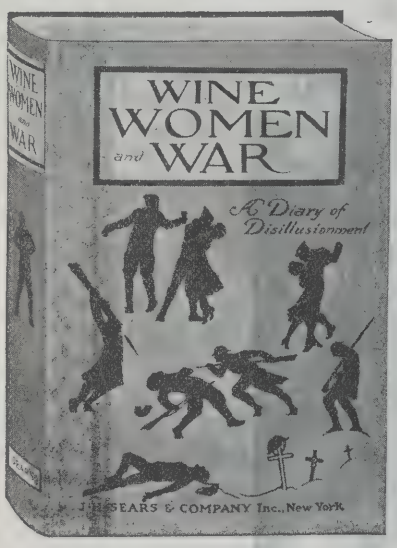
A Diary of Disillusionment

WINE, WOMEN AND WAR

NECESSARILY ANONYMOUS



This is an authentic, actual diary of a soldier in the Great War. It depicts in day by day entries actual war—its very essence as it was fought in France by our soldiers.

This is the diary of a young officer, intelligent, keenly alive, and sensitive to all that is going on around him, graphically revealing what he saw, he felt, he suffered.

This diary paints a vivid picture of the soldiers in the training camp, in their billets. Here is war with its ripe profanity, with morals shoved to the background, with refinements laid aside for the time being. This is a diary of laughter—but laughter with a touch of irony. It is comedy tinged with the tragic.

THE MAN HUNTERS

By MELVILLE DAVISSON POST

How Shall We Stop Crime?

"An expert biologist," says Mr. Post, "is able to reconstruct a prehistoric animal from a few bones. An expert criminologist can reconstruct a crime from the fragmentary evidence observed at the scene of that crime."

This book describes the methods by which the cleverest criminologists of the civilized countries of the world detect crime and bring the criminal to punishment. This book will reveal to the layman for the first time the actual ways by which crime is detected by the cleverest criminologists in the world.

To all those engaged in the detection of crime, to police commissioners, sheriffs, constables, to the detective, this book will be of great help.

I AM A WOMAN—AND A JEW

By LEAH MORTON

Touches Humanity's Heart

This is a story written by a woman who reveals with utter sincerity her intense experiences. This woman, in her daily life, met religious, social, racial obstacles. A pioneer among women in business, she found prejudices toward her sex in the business world.

This is the story of a woman who, because she was a Jew, was hampered in her earning power and in her progress. She found in her social life, in her mating, and in her desires for her children, towering prejudices between Jew and Gentile. By her sustaining courage, steadfast purpose she won priceless rewards of victory.

THE MEDICINE MAN

By E. C. DUDLEY, M.D., LL.D.

A Doctor's Autobiography

This is the autobiography of one of the leading medical men of our day, covering a span of fifty years of active practice. This book is full of the humanity of ministering to the sick, where a doctor is far more than the mere dispenser of medicine.

This volume affords a vivid, dramatic account of the busy full life of a doctor who grew abreast of the enormous advancement made in his profession. During the fifty years of his practice, greater progress was made in medicine and surgery than in all preceding medical history. This book, therefore, may be regarded as an account of this unprecedented period in the story of medicine and surgery.

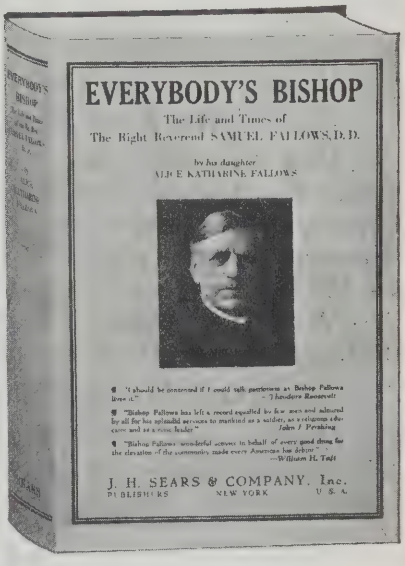
By ALICE KATHARINE FALLOWS



Samuel Fallows came to Chicago when it was a town of but nine thousand people; he played a prominent part in its civic, religious and educational growth, living to see it a city of over two million inhabitants.

He healed the sick, he was president of a college, he invented Bishop's beer, and ran a temperance saloon. This book might even be called a history of the building up of Chicago and the Middle West, so prominent a part did Dr. Fallows play in every important happening during the last half of the Nineteenth Century.

Large octavo, 461 pages, illustrated with 24 full-page halftones.

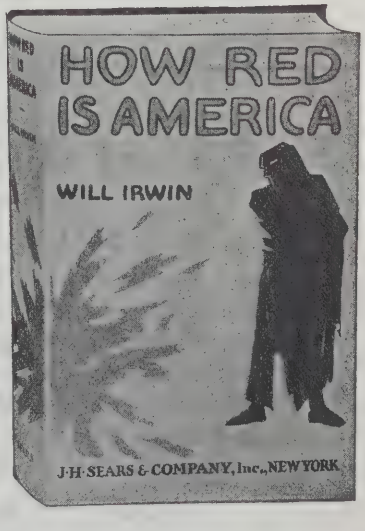
A Study in Radicalism

HOW RED IS AMERICA?

By WILL IRWIN

Can the Reds Win in America?



There is here in America today, the Communist, the Bolshevik, the Nihilist, the Anarchist, the Socialist, the Syndicalist, the I. W. W. (International Workers of the World).

Mr. Irwin tells how America by its complicated political machinery, by its highly elastic forms of government and by shady political practice, becomes a fertile ground in which these mal-contents are taking root and are prospering. This book, written by one of the keenest analytical minds in America, classifies, defines and judges these undigested elements in our body politic. He tells of their ideals and visions and their formula to bring about the perfect political state.

He writes with a mastery of his subject. His conclusions are logical, often sensational.

JAZZ

By PAUL WHITEMAN

The King Himself Now Tells About Jazz

Paul Whiteman relates for the first time the complete story of Jazz,—how it was brought from East Africa to America by slaves in the 17th Century. Its enormous growth from a small colored band playing on the streets of New Orleans in 1915 till today in the United States alone there are 300,000 members of Jazz dance orchestras.

Whiteman reveals his secrets of orchestration. In Jazz, America has the beginnings of its own national movement in music.

SAN FAIRY ANN

(Ça ne fait rien)

A Love Story of the Great War

By HUGH KIMBER

"San Fairy Ann" is the American soldier's adaptation of the French saying "Ça ne fait rien" which means "It doesn't matter." This is a story of the front line trenches, with the terrific roar and heat inside the tanks. With the thrills, the heroism of War is woven an appealing love story, which has its denouement in a peaceful green Canadian valley.

MOVE OVER

A Novel of "Our Better Classes"

By E. PETTIT

A lovely daughter of one of America's wealthiest families marries a plain young man from the Middle West, unaccustomed to society's ways. He is dazed by the loose morals and mad whirl of social activity. The author dips her pen in vitriol, writing with a whip-lash satire and sharpness of wit. A smart, clever story with the verve and dash of sophistication.

THERE AND BACK AGAIN

The Story of a Family

By MARY CROSBIE

This is a subtle and powerful study of family relationship. It is the story of the development of the character of a woman, emotionally constituted; of her married life in which she was able to love but little, and paradoxically wanted to love fervently. It is told with lavish use of drama, tragedy and the lighter tints of romance and humor.

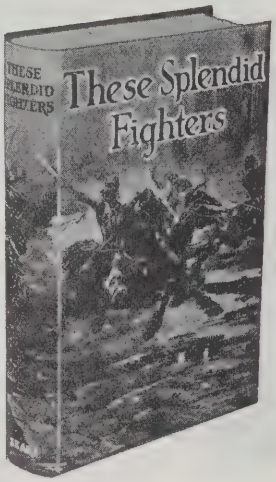
THREE GREAT BOOKS OF BIOGRAPHIES

These volumes portray the dramatic and stirring events in the lives of men and women who by their singular qualities of greatness have left an indelible impress on the history of the world. Here are splendid men of action, eminent adventurers, explorers, fighting men, great figures in the arts and women notable for rare achievement. In every instance these accounts are written by masters of literature,—the world's greatest authors, which adds to their interest and enjoyment.

There is a new, modern and interesting introduction for each of these volumes, which strikes an unusual note. Bound in green silk cloth, stamped in gold. Stained tops, decorative end sheets. Size 5¼ x 7⅝ inches.



These Splendid Fighters

This book interestingly presents a number of the world's outstanding figures—generals, statesmen, rulers, prophets, priests, founders of religion—fighters all, of whom the author, Edward Gibbon, the great historian, has painted vivid and distinguished portraits. Here we find Attila, the Hun; Belisarius, the Invincible; Stilicho, the Vandal Governor of Rome; Athanasius, the Unyielding Priest; Mohammed, the Prophet; Zingis Khan, the Mongol Conquerer. This book has a lively and interesting pictorial jacket printed in colors—"The Invasion of Rome by the Barbarians."

These Splendid Women

History's pages furnish us with a magnificent array of women characters. For this book have been selected a number of these eminent feminine figures, whose lives, colorful and dramatic, make most interesting reading. These accounts are each a masterpiece written by noted biographers and distinguished authors. We find in this volume brilliantly drawn portraits of Cleopatra, Joan of Arc, Catherine de Medici, Vittoria Colonna, Mary Queen of Scots, Maria Theresa, Madame de Pompadour, Charlotte Corday, Catherine the Great, and Florence Nightingale. For its jacket this volume has a splendid reproduction in colors of Sir Alma Tadema's dramatic portrayal of Cleopatra in her golden barge on the Nile.

These Splendid Painters

Of unusual interest and delight are the biographies in this book, because of the insight which they shed on the lives of men who have displayed the rarest artistic genius. This volume enjoys the rank of a classic, for each brilliant story is written by Vasari, whose fame largely rests upon his brilliant characterizations which he has drawn of famous painters. Here are Giotto, Botticelli, Fra Filippo Lippi, Fra Giovanni, Leonardo da Vinci, Perugino, Correggio, Raphael, Andrea del Sarto, Michelangelo and Titian. The jacket of this book portrays in soft warm duo tones and scarlet Koller's famous painting, which hangs in the Metropolitan Museum, of Mary of Burgundy posing for the artist Hugo Van der Goes.

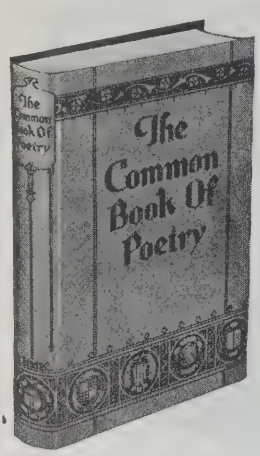
THE ROYAL COLLECTION

"Old Wine in New Bottles"



No man also having drunk old wine straightway desireth new; for he saith, the old is better.—
St. Luke, V 39.

The Apostle having told us we must not put new wine in old bottles adds the verse quoted above. That is the purpose of The Royal Collection.

In literature the old wine is always better than the new, because it has lived for a hundred or a thousand years, fighting its way decade by decade, century by century, through contemporary writings, traveling gallantly onward, while the latter, too weak to stand the pace, fall by the wayside.

The Common Book of Poetry

A collection of poetry becomes distinguished in proportion to the wisdom and discrimination displayed in the selection of its contents. We believe that The Common Book of Poetry is as good a book as any man or woman could desire. The selected poems included in it are not only amusing and interesting from their variety, but they include all the fine and familiar things the English speaking people love and read over and over again. This volume has a full gold jacket, with a distinctive and unusual design printed in a vivid black.

Decameron Tales

Decameron Tales exert an ever enduring charm. Their piquancy, tang and freshness never fail to make pleasurable reading. Here are offered those thirty odd stories out of the hundred which really made Boccaccio's name, which furnished the material for Shakespeare's plays, Chaucer's, Dryden's and Tennyson's poems, and which are clean even according to our modern standards. Decameron dressed in beautiful, modern clothes possesses a striking red and black jacket symbolic of the Florentine flavor and setting of these stories which adds greatly to the appearance of this book.

Great Lovers

It gives the reader in charming form the famous love stories of the ages, which are properly famous because they were written by the great writers of the last thousand years. It becomes a modern classic the day it is published because its contents has the stamp of centuries of approval, and because it has been brought out in a form as new, as bright and as attractive as the most modern novel. This volume is a modern classic of romance and contains the stories of Paul and Virginia, Abelard and Heloise, Pyramus and Thisbe, Romeo and Juliet, Paolo and Francesca, Aucassin and Nicolette, Orpheus and Eurydice. The jacket is the famous painting of Paolo and Francesca.

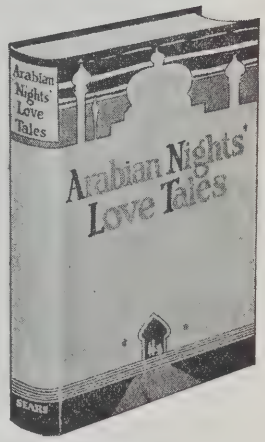
THE ROYAL COLLECTION

"Old Wine in New Bottles"

These volumes give unmistakable proof of good taste and excellence in book making. They are in a uniform binding of red textile leather stamped in gold with specially designed gold end papers and gold top. They are printed on a fine white book paper in clear easily read type with a pleasantly proportioned type page. Each book has an individual jacket of unusual appearance, which is distinctive and gaily colored. These volumes have introductions which are surprisingly original, and which possess a tang that savors of a distinguished literary quality.



Arabian Nights' Love Tales

Into this volume have been gathered those beautiful and tender love tales which are found throughout the Arabian Nights. These stories will be much enjoyed in this attractive form, as they possess all the fascinating Oriental flavor that has made the Thousand and One Nights so delightful a classic. This is the first time that these vibrant love tales of the east, known so well to scholars, have been collected into a single volume. A jacket in colors on silver paper, unusually original in design, gives this book a bright and interesting appearance.

With Byron in Love

Byron stands as history's most ardent, adept and resourceful lover. Women inspired much of his finest poetry. But Byron's love was not confined to women. He loved companionship, nature, art, liberty, his country and expressed himself as emotionally in these as in his love for women. This book becomes a real contribution to Byronic literature. It includes not only his poems but his letters and memoranda, which constitute some of the finest examples of passionate prose in literature. In this collection we see Byron in his most brilliant fascinating moods; we see him when his genius rises to its most sublime heights. This volume has a two color jacket in a distinctive and attractive design.

What Price Marriage

Marriage was a fruitful subject of discussion in the Roman Forum, in the Medieval castle halls, in the French salons, and it is equally as fresh and interesting a subject today. Wherever the discussion leads, whatever the conclusion is upon marriage, these great selections have one common quality, that of brilliance and absorbing interest. Nearly every writer in literature or great thinker has had something to say upon the question of marriage. These viewpoints and conclusions are as varied and as interesting as the writers are distinguished. These pieces, being so widely divergent in thought and opinion, make a rare, fascinating, intriguing volume. In this book are found, among others, brilliant selections by Voltaire, Balzac, Pepys, Lamb, Tacitus, Schopenhauer, The Koran, Dostoieffsky, Ibsen, Swift, Nietzsche, St. Augustin, Rabelais.

NEW TESTAMENT

In this New Testament is found a pleasing dignity such as is usually seen in only the more expensive testaments and bibles. These are de luxe small testaments, possessing to an unusual degree the good taste and appearance one demands in so intimate a volume. Each of the two editions measures 4¼" x 2¾"—an attractive small size, handy to carry and to use at church or in the home. These testaments are also particularly suitable as gifts for children to use in Sunday School and home.

The artificial leather edition is bound in a specially fabricated two tone material, handsomely embossed in symbolic design on the front and back covers. This testament is printed on a fine quality of opaque, thin, white bible paper in clear, easily read type. It has red stained edges, rounded corners and semi-flexible covers.

Genuine Leather Edition: Bound in genuine, full black leather with a lovely pin seal grain. Title stamped in genuine gold leaf. Full gold edges, ribbon marker and semi-flexible covers.

The genuine leather edition is bound in full black genuine leather with a lovely pin seal grain. This testament has the characteristic feel and appearance of a fine book. This charm is further increased by its semi-flexible covers. The title is stamped on the front cover in genuine gold leaf. This volume has full gold edges and silk ribbon marker. It is printed on a fine quality of thin, opaque, white bible paper in black, clear, readable type. Each testament is put up in a white box with cover.

STANDARD SETS

These are rich and handsome sets sold at strikingly low prices. They contain the most popular and widest selling titles of each author. These sets are bound with charming taste in the modish English paste grain artificial leather, which was made especially for these books and has the feel and appearance of genuine leather. The set of each author is bound in a different color and is put up in an attractive grey box with colored label on the end.

These sets are printed on a fine book paper from new plates in large easily read type. The type page is well proportioned with wide margins. The volumes have semi-flexible covers, which make the books pleasant to hold and to read and give them an added charm. The front covers are blind stamped with a rule and a handsomely designed monogram. The title and ornamentation on the back of the volumes are stamped in genuine gold leaf. They also have genuine gold tops, silk headbands, ribbon markers, and fancy end sheets of imported design.

The publication of these sets marks a notable undertaking in this field—the offering in limp leather style of the most popular works of the best selling standard authors at substantially one-half the usual price for such books.

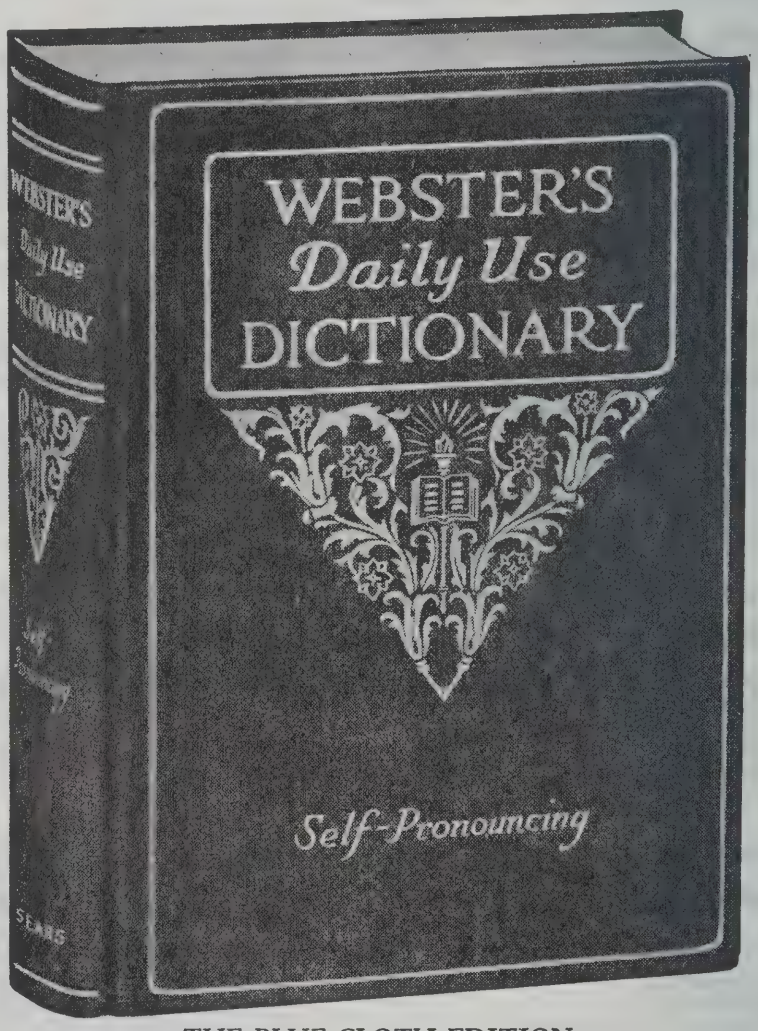
A BETTER DICTIONARY FOR LESS MONEY



THE BLUE CLOTH EDITION

Webster's Daily Use Dictionary is the most beautiful of all cloth-bound dictionaries. It is firmly bound in the finest quality of a sturdy, true blue linen weave pattern cloth, which will wear well. It has an attractive ornamental cover design in gilt which is both handsome and in good taste. This dictionary is printed on a high quality of white paper in large well-proportioned type. Webster's Daily Use Dictionary is unequalled in quality of contents and attractive appearance, and its price to the dealer is much less than any other dictionary in its class. The contents is exactly the same (762 pages) as that of the artificial leather edition described on the opposite page. Size 7¾ x 5½ x 1¾ inches.

Webster's Daily Use Dictionary is the best of all dictionaries for every general daily use in the office, in the home and in the school, wherever a scholarly, popular size dictionary is desirable. It furnishes exact, complete definitions. It is thoroughly modern and compiled by a staff of expert lexicographers. Its definitions are in synonym form, which render this dictionary up-to-date, and the most satisfactory of all books for every general use. Webster's Daily Use Dictionary will thoroughly please your customers, for it stands as the great value at its price, both in quality of contents and physical appearance, that is offered today.

SEARS JUVENILE CLASSICS

Here is an edition of standard Juvenile Classics which will fascinate the younger reader. These forty volumes are just what boys and girls want their books to be—bright, cheery and clever. The titles have been selected with much care and embrace a fine range of the widest selling and the best liked of the famous classics for children and young people.

These volumes have a brilliant jacket printed in four colors, depicting the familiar and beloved characters of famous children's stories passing in review. This pageant idea has been carried out with much originality, and is a most effective piece of pictorial jacket work. This picture is found again in a rich duo-tone sepia as end sheets in the front and back of each volume. This picture, which has proved of much interest to children, is thus preserved as a permanent feature of the book. In the panels on these end sheets are appropriate children's verses.

The covers of the volumes have an all over design stamped in red and deep bronze blue on a light tan cloth, making an unusually attractive combination of color values. This design is in keeping with the best taste in the finer books for children. The volumes are bound in sturdy, stiff covers, and will stand the hard usage a child gives to books. They have brilliant red stained tops. Each book is printed in large type from new plates on a fine quality of heavy white book paper. This year, the size of these volumes has been increased to a full standard twelve mo. measuring 5 inches wide by 7⅜ inches high and one inch thick. Each book contains about 256 pages.

The price of these volumes (50c) is so low that they are within the reach of every mother and father who want their children to enjoy the great stories of Juvenile literature in a particularly attractive form. These books possess many of the distinctive features heretofore found only in the finer Juvenile publications at a considerably higher cost.

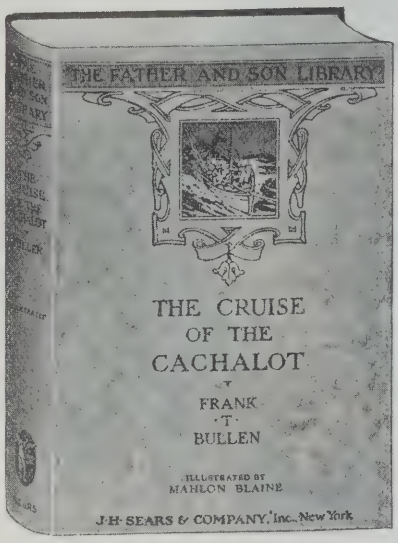
THE FATHER AND SON LIBRARY

Registered Trade Mark.

"My Boy's Book and Mine"

A New Interesting Idea in Books for Boys



During the past few years there has arisen a fine movement which will have the greatest importance to the coming generation. This is the "Father and Son" movement, and we find "Father and Son" golf tournaments, "Father and Son" boat races and "Father and Son" scout dinners. Father and son playing together promotes companionship between them, and breaks down the barriers of the respective generations. But nothing can so effectively further this movement, or weld so strong a bond between father and son as the reading of good books together.

Such is the idea behind this interesting Father and Son Library. The titles in this library are those which are not too young for the father to enjoy reading, and not too old to interest the boy.

These books have six full page halftone pictures, specially drawn for each of the titles by the best American artists. The volumes are bound in a high quality of cloth with an attractive design on front cover and backbone. They are printed in large, clear type from new plates on an excellent quality of book paper. They are full 12mo. in size, measuring 5½" x 7¾". They have handsome colored jackets and stained tops.

THE ROMANTIC STORIES OF THE STATES FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

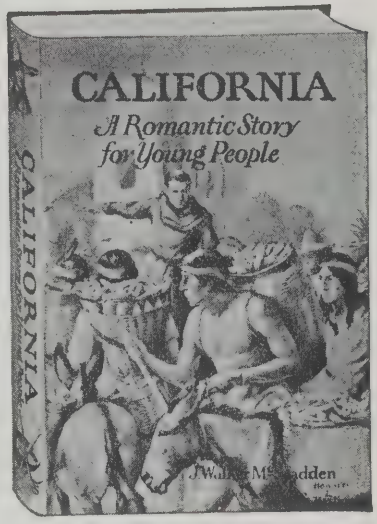
By J. WALKER McSPADDEN

Illustrated by HOWARD L. HASTINGS

This series presents a new and exceptionally interesting idea in books with an historic background for young people. With the events and facts of history thoroughly accurate the author at the same time writes with a keen sense of the story teller and stresses to the fullest the romantic and dramatic possibilities of his theme. The result is a group of books dealing with the history of the states in story form which are approved of by educators and which for their interest and fascination to the younger reader, will be hard to equal.

An old trapper or an old settler tells the stories and tales of adventure which are the important turning points in each state's history, while the young people sit about, ask questions and listen. These stories are told after the manner of the well beloved Uncle Remus. For each of the original thirteen states, the story is told from the time the first white man put foot within its territory until the Revolutionary War. For the other states, the story is brought down to the time of a state's admission to the Union.

A not unimportant purpose of these books is to create in the minds of the sons and daughters of a family, love of the native state of their parents or grandparents, from which the family moved away, and also to foster in the younger mind a love and knowledge of this new state in which they now live.



This picture shows the handsome four-color jacket for "California." The volume for each state will have its individual striking color jacket.

Each volume has a four-color jacket by the well known artist, Howard L. Hastings, illustrating a significant historic event in the story of the state. The same picture is also carried as the inlay and the frontispiece in the volume, and is thus retained as a permanent part of the book. These volumes are also illustrated with a large number of black and white full page and half page pictures, together with a decorative title page by the same artist. The end sheets are a reproduction of a hundred year old map showing the original trails, forts, etc.

These books are bound in a fine quality of green pattern cloth with a pictorial inlay on the front cover. The ornamental design and title on the back of the books, together with the frame around the inlay are stamped in gilt. They are printed on a good quality of white paper in large, readable type from new plates. Each book measures 5¾ x 8¼ inches and has a bright stained yellow top.

Price: 90 cents per volume

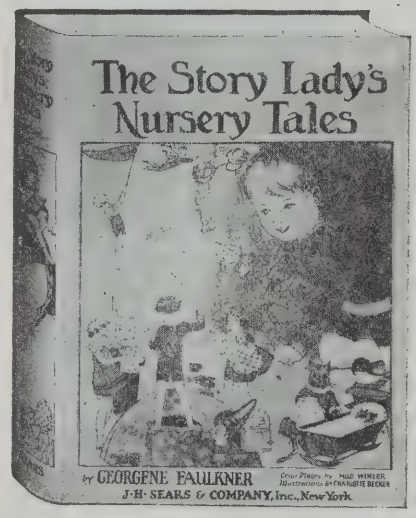
The STORY LADY'S NURSERY TALES

By GEORGENE FAULKNER

"The Story Lady"



Here are the famous nursery tales of many countries retold by Georgene Faulkner, the "Story Lady."

"The Story Lady" has become famous in her talks over the radio to children, because she has that unusual gift of speaking to the children in their own language, and creating for them an enchanting Storyland.

This book contains twenty-five famous nursery tales. Among these are The Gingerbread Boy; Chicken Little; The Little Red Hen; The Cat and The Fox; The King of the Birds; The Elves and the Shoemaker; Wee Robin's Yule Song; The Little Pine Tree; The Straw, The Coal and The Bean; The Iron Goat; The Feast Day; Father Bruin in the Corner; The Travels of a Fox; Little Tuppens; The Sausage, The Bean and The Mouse; The Cat and the Mouse in Partnership; The Old Woman and the Pig; The Sheep and the Pig Who Built a House.

The handsome appearance of this book will immediately appeal to the child. It contains eight full page pictures in color, and many black and white pictures. These pictures are particularly delightful, as they seem to catch the child's spirit and the child's point of view.

It has an attractive four color jacket, decorative end papers and cloth cover with colored inlay. This book is bound in a fine cloth with extra heavy covers. It is printed in large type from new plates. Size 6½" x 9". Contains about 256 pages.

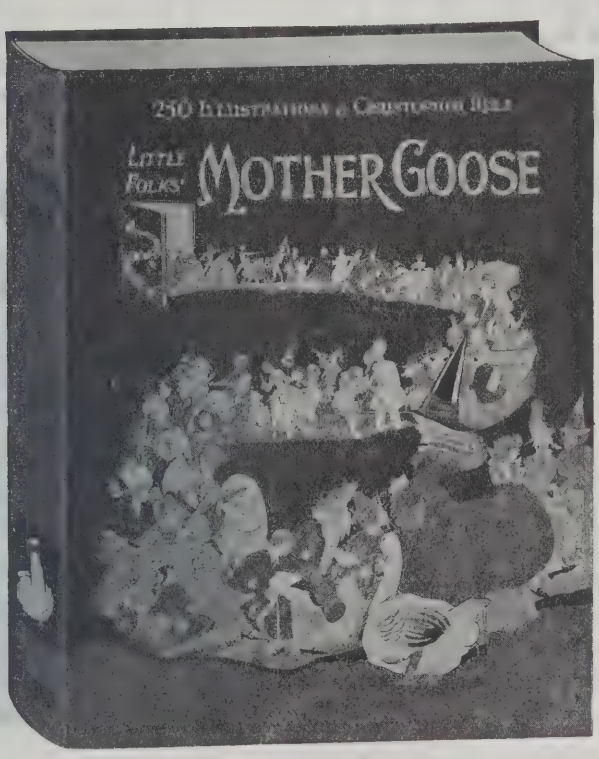
LITTLE FOLKS' MOTHER GOOSE



With 250 Illustrations by Christopher Rule

This beautifully illustrated edition of "Mother Goose" brings fresh and startling delights to boys and girls. This edition has been compiled with much care, and it will prove most satisfying in its arrangement, wording and editorial qualities.

This edition is made the more charming and delightful to the child because the pictures are drawn with a new cleverness. These illustrations have the appeal of the old famous editions, and at the same time they are modern in style and belong to the present day. There are 250 pictures in this fine book, many of them full page drawings. These were drawn specially for this edition by the well known artist, Christopher Rule.

A particularly attractive feature of this edition is its handsome jacket printed in four bright, contrasting colors. The artist has cleverly shown in this picture the beloved characters of "Mother Goose" marching by in pageant array. The child will pore over this picture with the greatest fascination, picking out the seventy-five familiar characters on this jacket.

This picture that appears on the jacket is found again in its same brilliant colors as the inlay on the cover. This beautiful edition also has colored pictorial end papers and a decorative title page.

This volume is bound in a red pattern cloth which handsomely sets off the inlay. The book also has a brilliant red stained top. It is printed on unusually good paper from new plates. The type has been chosen for size and style so as to be easy and pleasant for the child to read. This is an extra large book, measuring 9½" wide by 11¾" high. The rule around the inlay on the front cover and the design and lettering on the backbone is stamped in gilt.

This book contains probably more pictures than have ever been put into a volume of "Mother Goose" to sell at this price. It will prove the outstanding edition of "Mother Goose" in its attractiveness to children.

Harvard Business Reports – Volumes I, II, III, and IV

By the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University.

Executive problems confronting one business man are usually very similar to problems that others have had to solve. Here are actual cases showing what decisions other men have reached and why this or that course of action was either right or best.

Volumes I and II contain over 200 cases in the general field of business affording executives in any kind of business an opportunity to analyze and compare the precedents and practices of others in their own fields, together with the precedents and practices of firms in vastly different lines, when solving problems identical with their own. Volume III is devoted exclusively to cases in Marketing, the commentaries being written by Melvin T. Copeland, and Volume IV to cases in Labor, the commentaries being written by John W. Riegel and other authorities in the field.

APOLOGIA

In issuing a catalogue it is uncustomary, perhaps, for a publisher to send with it an apologia. Yet, with a history that starts with a book of Cross Word Puzzles, ranges to Viennese novels, jumps to a book on Philosophy, bolts over to books on poker or bridge, travels to a volume of South African reminiscences, and in the interim veers off in as many directions almost as the knight's move on a chess board, we take the liberty to offer this brief explanation.

Publishing is a personal matter, we feel. We publish books primarily which, as non-publishers, we would like to read, were they available at bookstores, or libraries, or at the homes of friends.

Of course, we like best sellers. But in the short span of our corporate life we have discovered the manuscript that in editorial councils looks as though "it ought to go big" because "it has this appeal and that element" usually turns out quite the other way—unless it happens that we like it despite the fact that it looks threateningly like a best seller.

True enough, even books which appeal most strongly to us and yet seem of limited appeal—we publish them and occasionally discover to our chagrin that, as we had suspected, the public stays away in droves.

So, if the peruser of this catalogue may wonder at a book on chirography, so apparently neighborly with a group of twenty-five cent poetry pamphlets, the answer is: neither is necessarily destined for the dizzy heights of best-sellerdom; yet we like these poems, and we like the hand-writing book. Indeed, each book listed in these pages is one which (were we not privileged to be its publishers and thereby accorded the honor of purloining the first two copies off press) we should borrow or rent, or in a period of prosperity, be sorely tempted to buy.

Richard L. Simon
M. Lincoln Schuster

Simon and Schuster and The Forum Magazine have the joint honor of announcing

THE FRANCIS BACON AWARD

It is generally agreed by educators, writers, librarians and publishers that perhaps the most significant trend of our time is the ever-widening audience for distinguished and authentic non-fiction books which, in the words of James Harvey Robinson, "carry on the conscious adventure of humanizing knowledge".

Recognizing this trend, Simon and Schuster and The Forum Magazine have decided to establish a prize for the outstanding new work of the year which, to again use James Harvey Robinson's phrase, carries on the conscious adventure of humanizing knowledge.

The award will be known as The Francis Bacon Prize, and will consist of $7,500 cash, in addition to book royalties. The winning manuscript will be published serially by The Forum Magazine and published in book form by Simon and Schuster.

The object of the prize is to encourage and reward both new authors and established writers.

No hard and fast rules are laid down as to subject matter or method of treatment. In the spirit of Francis Bacon, all knowledge will come within the province of this award.

It is conceivable that had the prize been established before this, and had the manuscripts been entered in competition, books like the following might have won the award:

The Outline of History by H. G. Wells.
Creative Chemistry by E. E. Slosson.
The Mind in the Making by James Harvey Robinson.
The Story of Philosophy by Will Durant.
Why We Behave Like Human Beings by George A. Dorsey.
The Story of Mankind by Hendrik Willem Van Loon.
Queen Victoria by Lytton Strachey.
Our Times—The Turn of the Century by Mark Sullivan.
Microbe Hunters by Paul De Kruif.

The Decline of the West by O. Spengler.
The Travel Diary of a Philosopher by Count Hermann Keyserling.

It is to be noted that most of these books began their careers not as "best sellers", but as books which were written and published in the spirit of humanizing knowledge. That they became "best sellers" later on was due to the need of books like them in a definite field of human endeavor.

The Francis Bacon Award is, therefore, not a hunt for "best sellers", but a constructive plan to stimulate writers and scientists who have something of real significance to say in any field of major interest (be it art, architecture, astronomy, psychology, law, banking, invention, or any other of countless other fields) and who can say it in an effective and enlightening way.

We have the pleasure of announcing the following who have already honored The Francis Bacon Contest by consenting to act as judges:

Dr. James Henley Breasted of the University of Chicago.
Dr. Edward Grant Conklin of Princeton University.
Professor John Dewey of Columbia University.
Dr. George A. Dorsey, author of Why We Behave Like Human Beings.
Dr. Will Durant, author of The Story of Philosophy.
Dr. Vernon Lyman Kellogg, Director National Research Council.
Dr. Henry Goddard Leach, Editor of The Forum.
Frank Jewett Mather of Princeton University.
Dr. Harlow Shapley of Harvard University.
Dr. E. E. Slosson, author of Creative Chemistry.
Dr. Hendrik Willem Van Loon, author of The Story of Mankind.

TRANSITION

By WILL DURANT

Author of The Story of Philosophy

12mo. September 30th $2.50

THIS strange novel of the mind, which Will Durant wrote as a recreation from more ponderous subjects, is a remarkable synthesis of wisdom and beauty: written in a style of such classic simplicity and restraint as may make it a permanent contribution to American literature; and giving in a vivid and personal way the tragedy of the modern soul, caught between two eras and two worlds, and struggling to retain its balance and sanity in a flux of morals and beliefs.

The story tries to show the effect, upon one mind, of the great changes which have come upon the religious faith of the western world. In a lesser way it tries also to show the political experiments and disillusionment of our time, and to trace the evolution of a fairly typical rebel from Utopian aspiration through a cynical despondency to some measure of reconciliation and content. These changes have not been as impersonal as the abstract chronicle of history has represented them; they have brought to sensitive individuals much suffering in mental transition and readjustment; they have broken up families and friendships; and they have unsettled the minds of many generations by uprooting the beliefs in which those generations grew.

Dr. Durant is altogether frank in depicting and explaining changes of faith, yet he writes with so fine a consideration for others and with such earnest reverence that Transition will appeal strongly to clergy and laity alike.

TRANSITION—(Continued)

To his publishers Dr. Durant wrote: "This accompanying 'remembrance of things past' was written in a pleasant vacation-time, as an indulgent relief from a year of historical research. But it was done con amore; and there are some pages in it which I am afraid will remain to the end the best that I have written."

THE MAN WHO CONQUERED DEATH

By FRANZ WERFEL
Author of Verdi

Translated by Clifton Price Fadiman and William A. Drake

Small 12mo.	October 7th	$1.50

IF the poor but respectable Herr Fiala can only manage to survive his sixty-fifth year, the terms of his precious insurance policy will provide for his beloved family and keep them from disgrace. A critical predicament for this valiant old provincial with his sad dreams of the dignified days of long ago!

Out of this tragi-comic situation the brilliant author of Verdi and Juarez and Maximilian has constructed a veritable epic of homely life. From the seemingly humble spectacle of stunted, warped existence arises a new Heldenleben, a heroic saga of the commonplace pervaded by a moving human sympathy, a tender humor, an impelling tragic power.

Nothing finer has come from Herr Werfel's pen than this fascinating grotesque, which transcends its grotesquerie thru the depiction of a strange spiritual victory. A simple story aimed directly at the heart—and not a sentence misses its goal.

GOD GOT ONE VOTE

By FREDERICK HAZLITT BRENNAN

12mo. August 5th $2.50

THIS is the story of Boss Van Hoos, who entered politics in a saloon brawl the night before the McKinley-Bryan election and ultimately became one of the most powerful political bosses in the United States.

Van Hoos is on almost every page of this story. He is big-hearted, powerful, ignorant, sentimental, tough and gentle; a more startlingly genuine character has rarely been portrayed in recent fiction.

. . . . . But, were Pat to read this description of himself he would remonstrate. "Hell," he would say, "save that whoop-la to get us votes in the next campaign. It won't sell no books."

Alvira, his wife, might balk at adjectives, too, unless they appeared in a society column. "Use my name on a book jacket!" she would probably exclaim, "how utterly common."

Pat's daughter, Gwendolyn, wouldn't care so much, provided there were plenty of clever adjectives and a few pointed epigrams.

Other people in the book, the Senators, the Mayors, the Governors, would appreciate any blurb—the more of it, the better.

Notwithstanding Pat's remonstrances against "whoop-la" the reader will suspect him. For it was despite Pat's better knowledge of Politics that God Got One Vote.

Mr. Brennan found, too, that the political boss is generally a much maligned fellow, and far more admirable than most of the statesmen he creates.

In writing to his publishers about God Got One Vote, Mr. Brennan said:

> "I had been wanting to do a novel of realistic idealism, because I think whatever very clever and amusing writers have said to the contrary, that is the spirit of American life today. I think we can look at life honestly and yet keep its values in proper proportion to each other. I'm no sunshiner, but, as you suspect, a confounded sentimentalist and inclined to treat leniently the power that made this wicked, interesting world."

DAYBREAK

By ARTHUR SCHNITZLER

Author of Fraulein Else, Beatrice, Rhapsody, Etc.

Translated by William A. Drake

Small 12mo. October 21st $1.50

LIFE and love are games of chance is the hypothesis underlying Daybreak, the latest and perhaps the most exciting novelette that Arthur Schnitzler has yet written.

A young army officer, who might be the average young man, seeks to rescue a casual acquaintance from the disgrace attending on failure to pay his gambling debts. In an effort to win at cards the sum required to save his friend from self-destruction, Willi becomes himself involved for an amount ten times as great. For him the only possible saviour is his uncle's young wife, who had played a part in a casual amour of the past.

The whole story takes place within a little more than two days, and the game which Willi plays on the second night comes to a poignant conclusion at the second daybreak. If the young officer had been willing to accept good fortune when it had faced him, or to acknowledge love when it was in his arms, there might have been a different conclusion to the game of the second night. But Schnitzler, as always, is honest with his characters and with his reader, and if the cards seem to be stacked against any one of the participants in this life gamble, they were stacked by Fate, the dealer, and not by Schnitzler.

DEATH OF A YOUNG MAN

By W. L. River

12mo.	August 19th	$2.00

The author's introduction to these diary notes is simply as follows:

> "These are the papers of my young friend David Bloch. He was eager for life, romantic, sentimental and afraid of life, romance, and sentiment. Perhaps he was dying. He did not wait to see."

The narrative is told in the form of a diary kept over a period of some six months. The narrator, David Bloch, has been told by the physician that he has only some twelve months to live. His thoughts, visions and actions under the terrific weight of this knowledge form the substance of the book.

Part of the story is realistic, part highly dream-like in quality. There is an absorbing account of his two love affairs. Everything that occurs to him, of course, bears a double and ironic significance because of his knowledge of his fate. He is analytic about it, hardly sentimental, but gradually losing possession of his mind. He is aware of all the changes taking place in him; he is stoical in the face of death, yet his poetic appreciation of the beauty of life is heartbreakingly intense. He endeavors to crowd a lifetime of experience into his few poor months—but he succeeds merely in filling his overwrought brain with a tortured beauty and a throng of hallucinations based on death and murder. His friends, lightly sketched in, are all aware of his fate; their differing reactions form an ironic commentary on the relations of the living to those who are about to die.

Death of a Young Man is one of the most remarkable documents the publishers have read, and they thoroughly believe that it is a literary find of the first water. Whether the enthusiasm of the five persons who read it in manuscript will be shared by a large public, time alone can tell.

THE MYSTERY AT LOVERS' CAVE

By ANTHONY BERKELEY

12mo.	August 12th	$2.00

ROGER SHERINGHAM, a young newspaper man and amateur detective, is sent to report the case of a Mrs. Vane, who is supposed to have committed suicide by jumping off a steep cliff. On Roger's arrival in the small country town, he finds Inspector Moresby of Scotland Yard already investigating the case. This confirms his opinion that Mrs. Vane did not commit suicide, but was murdered.

Miss Cross, who was a cousin of the dead woman and had been living with her as a sort of servant, is immediately suspected, since she is the beneficiary of a large insurance policy. Roger and his cousin, Anthony, who has accompanied him, interview Miss Cross and are thoroughly convinced of her innocence, despite the fact that all clues point to her. The cousins both feel sure she is the victim of peculiar circumstances, besides which her alibis are numerous and excellent.

As the sleuthing continues, there are so many clues that a perfectly logical case is built up against four or five different persons.

Then there is another death—that of a well-known and much sought criminal who had been posing as a clergyman. This, too, is considered suicide at first, but is later proved to have been murder.

Roger and Anthony reach a satisfactory conclusion for both murders, but Inspector Moresby points out many flaws in their solution and offers another one. Finally, the story ends with a conclusive solution, so simple that it is staggering.

What makes this detective story so notable is that it will fool all of the people all of the time—without cheating.

AUBREY BEARDSLEY

The Clown, The Harlequin, The Pierrot of His Age

By HALDANE MACFALL

Quarto — October 28th — $5.00

Limited edition, 300 copies signed by the author. Special paper and special binding, $10.00

THERE is perhaps no one in the world more eminently qualified to write an authoritative Life of Aubrey Beardsley than Haldane Macfall. Not only was Macfall himself an outstanding figure in the 'Nineties, but his long standing eminence as an art critic, and his facility of expression alone would make his book noteworthy. Added to this is the authoritative, personal and intimate touch which the passage of the years has strengthened by the ability to look back and view Beardsley with the eyes of our generation, unbefogged by the glorious clouds that surrounded the genius of The Yellow Book and The Savoy.

Since the death of Aubrey Beardsley there have been a number of short papers and essays on his life. Most of these have stressed the literary side, and none have been complete full length portraits of the man, artist and writer.

Aubrey Beardsley was the most interesting and the most important figure in artistic London of the 'Nineties. Haldane Macfall's story of his life is a human document, written in simple form, full of his development and an estimate of his achievement. Written in a swinging prose, it has the compelling interest of a novel and is the sort of book that holds the reader until the small hours of the night.

Although it is done with a sure hand and a splendid understanding of Beardsley's art the book is not merely a volume of art criticism, the author spins the tale in a way that captures the reader who knows little or nothing of the technique of art—he elaborates on the mind and life of Beardsley and his companions—touching on his detestation of Oscar Wilde and his relation to the scandal—and gives a frank description of Beardsley's eroticism with its effect on his life and his art.

The book is lavishly illustrated and the plates have been arranged by the author so that they carry through Beardsley's development from stage to stage in a splendid way. All who are interested in modern art and the life of a rare artistic genius will be attracted by the wealth of anecdote, the spontaniety, wit and charm of Haldane Macfall's book. It is a unique achievement in the literature of biography—an art of the rarest quality.

TRADER HORN

By ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN and ETHELREDA LEWIS

Octavo | June 10th | $4.00

ONE day Mrs. Ethelreda Lewis was sitting on the porch of her house in South Africa. Out of the quiet a strange old man walked up to her. He was a straight old man bearing a heavy pack of goods and looked as though he were bearing only frying pans and coffee pots for sale. Actually, he bore a strange story. So full of romantic adventure and dangerous exploitation was his story that Mrs. Lewis put a pen in his hand and made him write; and then he talked while she wrote. Between the two came the present volume.

John Galsworthy writes in the foreword to Trader Horn: "This is a gorgeous book, more full of sheer stingo than any you are likely to come across in a day's march among the bookshops of wherever you may be. . . . And to those who, in these days of fakes, might be doubtful whether it's not all too good to be true, let me say that in February, 1927, I had the pleasure of meeting the 'Old Visiter' and his editress, in Johannesburg; and that he is in very truth the 'character' herein disclosed."

THE 'COMPLEAT' GILBERT AND SULLIVAN

By ISAAC GOLDBERG

Author of The Man Mencken, Etc.

Octavo	November 4th	$5.00

The 'Compleat' Gilbert and Sullivan is the first attempt, by an authority equally versed in literature and music, to treat fully the most famous collaboration in the modern theatre. The individual development of Gilbert from low burlesque to the famous series of the Savoy; the swinging of Sullivan between church and stage; their union in a venture that blended their antithetical personalities and won a genuine victory over Victorianism—these are the chief lines of a chronicle and commentary that ramifies into numerous fascinating by-paths of English humor of the nineteenth and early twentieth century.

The operettas of Gilbert and Sullivan were rarely more popular at home and abroad than they are today. Their public is numbered at 3,000,000 and there is talk of nationalizing them in a government opera house. It is half a century since Pinafore, first of their international "Hits," was launched on a triumphant voyage, the end of which is far beyond contemporary reckoning.

The 'Compleat' Gilbert and Sullivan reconstructs a period, interprets its representative jesters and throws, upon this source of not always innocent merriment, the light of intelligent appreciation.

EROICA

THE LIFE OF LUDWIG VAN BEETHOVEN

By SAMUEL CHOTZINOFF

Octavo — November 11th — $3.50

IN Eroica, Samuel Chotzinoff, the renowned music critic of The New York World, traces four influences in Beethoven's life that account for much that is known, and much that is unknown about the great composer.

1. The cultural and refining influence of Madame Von Breuning and her family when the composer was an uncouth young man in Bonn.

2. His passion for the Immortal Beloved, whoever she may have been. The wild romantic character of the famous letter to this lady, found in a secret cabinet after Beethoven's death, shows the composer cheated of normal life, grasping at the shadow of love.

3. His affection for his nephew. All the depth of Beethoven's love was showered upon this relative, whose ultimate worthlessness gradually embittered the composer, and accounts for a great deal in the music of his later life.

4. His deafness, contracted from an illness early in life. This was epochal in his development as an artist and a man. It accounts for his hostile attitude toward women, and his Comstockian interference in the lives of his friends and relations. Ultimately, this deafness alienated Beethoven from expressing the sensuous world, and threw him instead into a world of spirit and idea.

Out of these four important influences (together with myriads of minor ones) Beethoven emerges as a man: one hammered by life into the proper instrument for the musical expression of the loftiest feelings of civilized man.

W. R. HEARST

AN AMERICAN PHENOMENON

By JOHN K. WINKLER

Octavo · November 11th $3.00

FOR over a quarter of a century, through his enormous chain of daily and monthly publications, William Randolph Hearst has breakfasted with millions. He stands today as the most powerful figure in American journalism, and is truly an American phenomenon.

Yet his compatriots know him merely abstractly—through his flaming crusades, scarifying cartoons, exclamatory headlines, gawdy comics.

What of the man himself, his career, his notices, his habits, his manners? This study brings home the panorama of Hearst—his activities in politics, in journalism, real estate, and movies. And it makes the man Hearst, who has been a household word denoting any of a large number of vague, big-looming ideas, a living figure to know and understand.

The author, John K. Winkler, has been a noted newspaper and magazine reporter for eighteen years. Much of this period was passed roaming this and other countries on big assignments for the Hearst papers and news service. Mr. Winkler has had unsurpassed training and opportunity to study Hearst and Hearst journalism—the man and his methods.

A series of articles by Mr. Winkler on Hearst has recently appeared in "The New Yorker." This series took in approximately one-tenth of the unbiased and exciting material in the present biography.

THE PHILOSOPHERS' LIBRARY

First Titles:

1. THE WORKS OF PLATO

Edited by Professor Irwin Edman of Columbia University.

2. THE WORKS OF SCHOPENHAUER

Edited by Will Durant, Author of The Story of Philosophy

12mo. October 21st Each volume $2.00

THIS PHILOSOPHERS' LIBRARY will consist of the works of the major philosophers, in one volume each, edited, abridged and annotated by specialists of high repute, with foreword, bibliography, glossary, and other aids for both the general reader and the scholar.

On the editorial advisory committee will be a group of eminent philosophy professors from leading universities, and Will Durant.

Thousands of readers have recently been stimulated to discover or re-discover the original writings of the major philosophers. The present "complete works" in numerous volumes and various editions and translations are either unavailable or too vast for all but the most resourceful specialist.

Each volume in THE PHILOSOPHERS' LIBRARY will give not merely representative and significant passages, but the more important works, conveniently and illuminatingly arranged and organized, with only such excisions and condensations as the editor may deem necessary to bring the philosopher's contribution into one convenient volume.

A necessity for the scholar, a delight for the lover of wisdom.

PHILOSOPHY AND THE SOCIAL PROBLEM

By WILL DURANT

12 mo.	September	$2.00

THIS volume was originally issued in 1916 by Macmillan and Company.* In view of the interest in Philosophy and Sociology, it has been thought that Philosophy and the Social Problem will interest many of the hundreds of thousands of Will Durant's readers.

When this book was published it was reviewed by H. L. Mencken as follows:

> "I have never read a more surprising piece of writing. I invaded it in the full expectation of passing a placid hour in a decorous seminary. I came out of it with my hair on fire. The author knew a juicy word from a stale one, and had in him a certain fine intellectual resilience and audacity. . . . A book of rare tang and vivacity, an oasis in the wilderness of academic pishposh."

*Simon and Schuster have the honor now to be the publishers of all of Will Durant's books. Among the forthcoming titles are: Transition (this Autumn), Mansions of Philosophy (1928), The Story of Civilization (1929), and The History of the Nineteenth Century—four volumes, the first volume to appear in 1930.

LENZ ON BRIDGE

SERIES TWO

By SIDNEY S. LENZ

12mo. October 7th $2.50

WHEN Lenz on Bridge was published, it made a success in the bridge-playing world. Here for the first time was a book for the advanced player which, while it included plenty of technical points, was written in so charming and easy a style that even a tyro could understand the technique involved.

This first book consisted of only a small portion of the material Mr. Lenz had written.

In response to a demand from bridge players all over the country for more bridge material by Lenz, the second book is published. It takes up entirely new points of the game that are not covered in Lenz on Bridge and is written in the same charming, intimate and lucid style. It is in every way a fit companion for its predecessor.

[LENZ ON BRIDGE, SERIES ONE AND TWO, BOXED, $5.00.]

THE CROSS WORD PUZZLE BOOK

EIGHTH SERIES

Edited by PROSPER BURANELLI, MARGARET PETHERBRIDGE, and F. GREGORY HARTSWICK

6¼ x 7¼, with Venus pencil and eraser — August 12th — $1.35

Q. WHAT has this, the Eighth Cross Word Puzzle Book, in common with the Seventh, Sixth, Fifth and so on, to and including the First?

A. Everything but the puzzles and the jacket,—they're entirely new.

New words to conquer, new puzzles to solve, New York to Paris—it's a grand and glorious year for us Americans.

When you hop off from latitude 1 of the first puzzle, you embark on a great adventure. Despite all your skill and experience gained through seven previous flights, we will guarantee that thirty-three hours won't see you landing on the last square of this trip. Ration yourself for a thrilling hundred hour journey, and if the hundred and first hour doesn't find you still plugging along some eight or ten puzzles from the end, consider yourself a champion.

We've heard that there are people so completely enslaved by the habit, they would give their immortal souls for new and harder puzzles.

The minute they get this book, there's the Devil to pay.

THE CRYPTOGRAM BOOK

Edited by Prosper Buranelli, F. Gregory Hartswick and Margaret Petherbridge.

12mo. November 18th $1.50

CRYPTOGRAPHY certainly sounds highbrow. It is really the most intellectual of puzzling diversions—this decoding of secret ciphers and messages. Very well, be an intellectual giant. You will be astonished to find how readily you will take hold of a cipher and straighten it out. That's the big thrill—when you solve your first cryptogram.

How is it done? Well, here is a cryptogram—a message coded by substituting one letter for another; X may stand for A, Y for B, and so on.

Z MX BLY XMZO XMO, ZO BLMB M OMXY ZD XZOY.

We notice two one-letter words—Z and M. A and I are the only two one-letter words in English. Which is which?

In the fourth word we notice the combination MZ. AI is far more common in English than IA in words of this length. So we assume that M is A and Z is I. Now fill in A for M and I for Z.

The second word has only two letters, begins with A, and follows the pronoun, I. Only AM makes sense. So we now have three letters, A, I, and M.

The third and fourth words are MAI— and MA—. N seems to be the most satisfactory ending, so we assume that O is N. This also gives ZO to be IN.

Now look at the third word from the end. It is NAM—. The last letter can only be E.

Note two other words—BLY and BLMB. We know thaat Y is E and M is A; the only combination that fits is at once seen to be THE and THAT.

So far we have:

I AM THE MAIN MAN, IN THAT A NAME I— MINE.

What is the missing letter? It cannot be N or T, for we already have them; F and S are the only other two letters that follow I in a two-letter word. S it must be to make sense, and the cryptogram is solved.

The Cryptogram Book contains a great number of these fascinating puzzles, carefully edited and arranged in order from easy to difficult, together with many picture cryptograms and examples from cryptography in real life. The whole theory of this tantalizing sport is explained in a foreword written by the editors, in which the subject is thoroughly discussed and made clear.

MIND YOUR P'S AND Q'S

By JEROME S. MEYER

7¾x10¼	September 16th	$1.50

MOST books on handwriting analysis require study and concentration before they can be of any use to the reader. There is no system on the market at present whereby anyone, anywhere, can put a specimen of handwriting in a book, "turn the crank" and get an accurate quick analysis of the writer.

Mr. Meyer, a keen student of graphology, has invented such a system. It is almost uncanny for speed, accuracy, and simplicity. Furthermore, anyone can analyze any specimen of writing without the slightest knowledge of the subject.

Let us take a specimen:

I can remember the days when we were all together at the

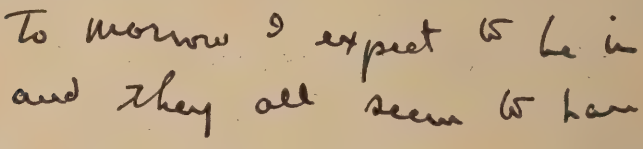
There are a number of outstanding points about this writing just as there are about any other writing. For instance, it has a definite slope, a definite size, the small letters are either connected or disconnected, they are either pointed or round, there is a definite margin and a number of other items.

In MIND YOUR P'S AND Q'S, there is a series of fifteen charts on transparent paper. All the reader need do in order to get a quick, accurate, and complete analysis of a specimen of handwriting is to place that specimen underneath each sheet and note which particular diagram it fits. For example, one sheet is devoted to slopes and the diagrams on that sheet look like the following:



The writing shown here has a wavy base line which shows an unsteady, unsystematic nature. It is placed under sheet A to see whether or not it stays on a straight line and this is noted together with the letter of the page. There are sheets for size, margin, shape, connected letters, open letters, space lines and etc. They are all just as simple as the one shown here.

When the reader has gone through the fifteen pages, he will have a list of notes like the following: A-1, B-7, C-3, D-5, etc. It only remains for him to look these up in the back of the book and find out what they mean. A surprisingly accurate and complete analysis of any handwriting can thus be obtained by anyone without the slightest knowledge of the subject.

GUGGENHEIM

By HAYDIE EAMES and MADELEINE MARSHALL

7½ in. square — June 10th — $1.00

NOBODY knows how the game got its name. It is based on the old home standby, Categories. Perhaps the game can best be explained by showing an example of a Guggenheim all filled in.

This book consists of fifty Guggenheim puzzles, instructions on how to do them, and how to score. At the back of the book is a section devoted to the answers given by fifty famous and enthusiastic Guggenheim solvers.

BRONX BALLADS

By ROBERT A. SIMON

Illustrated by Harry Hershfield

7x9¼ | June 10th | $2.00

A BOOK of songs, that if they weren't actually written in the Bronx, they might have been. Read and sing "All My In-laws Are Outlaws now," "Rosenthal Ain't Rosenthal No More," "Sadie Looks so Snappa in Her Phi Beta Kappa" and the rest of the Bronx Ballads.

Text, Music, Words, Introductory Notes and Comments by Robert A. Simon. Pictures and Gags by Harry Hershfield.

It is physically possible to stage a house party without this book, but it won't be nearly so much fun.

Here are some of the comments on the book:

The New York Evening Sun:

Anyone interested in local folklore can't afford to be without a copy of Robert A. Simon's Bronx Balads. Already The Lipschitz Wedding and Rosenthal Ain't Rosenthal No More are classics.

The New Yorker:

Bronx Ballads is a volume of folksongs which are a magnificent addition to the folklore of Manhattan. The learned editor and composer not only writes a stimulating treatise on the flora and fauna of the Bronx, replete with erudite footnotes, but each ballad is preceded by a program note which does credit to Mr. Simon's poetic fancy and ingenuity.

Just as soon as one has digested these aids to the intellectual understanding of the songs, one runs, rather than walks, to the nearest piano to play the sweet melodies themselves.

For those weary of chanting the habitual party dirges I suggest that this book will become an indispensable ally in town or country, mountain or seashore, during the coming vacation months.

The New York Herald-Tribune:

The finest lyrics of the year, though eminently singable, are not in a musical comedy, either. Of course, this cryptic reference means Robert Simon's marvelous Bronx Ballads.

The Cleveland Topics:

Bronx Ballads contains some perfectly wonderful illustrations and the stories and ballads are beyond everything delightful.

FINANCIAL ADVICE TO A YOUNG MAN

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Author of The Common Sense of Money and Investments

12mo. November 4th $2.50

MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER'S new volume bridges the gap between the classified advertising column in newspapers and austere tomes on economics. In fascinating, vivid style, dealing with concrete situations, the book sets forth a programme for getting along in the world. It suggests how the individual can appraise his own talents, and adjust himself to the modern changing world of high finance and big business. It is especially useful for young men and women who are about to leave college and enter the real world of affairs. It also has message for those in business who do not seem to be moving ahead with the tides. The book goes back to Socrates and informs the reader that the fundamental problem is to "Know Thyself."

The theme of the book is the universal longing of ambitious Americans to get ahead. It analyzes the successes of men at the top, and diagnoses causes of failure. It joins the researches of the psychological laboratory with the practical experience of the office, factory, and shop. The author, as financial editor of metropolitan newspapers, as magazine editor and contributor, and as instructor in finance at Columbia University, has had an unusual opportunity to study at first hand the ingredients of successful careers. In this friendly, helpful book, Mr. Rukeyser gives specific answers to the hundreds of questions in personal finance which are in the minds of every man and woman who is trying to make his way in the world. The topics dealt with are suggested over a period of years by hundreds of university students and by tens of thousands of newspaper and magazine writers who wrote to the author for advice and guidance.

The book makes an ideal gift for young people, and may constitute a turning point in their lives.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS

Southern Albania or Northern Epirus in European International Affairs, 1912–1923.

By Edith P. Stickney, Ph.D. (Stanford).

Octavo, xi+195 pages, frontispiece, 8 maps, bibliography. 1927. Brown cloth, $2.50, postpaid.

Awarded the George Louis Beer Prize by the American Historical Association in 1925. The history of Southern Albania, in its international aspects, is traced through the Balkan and World wars, the Paris Conference, and the deliberations of the League of Nations. Professor Bernadotte Schmitt calls the book "a model of writing diplomatic history."

The Law and Procedure of International Tribunals.

By Judge Jackson H. Ralston.

Octavo, xl+512 pages. 1926. Blue buckram, $5.00, postpaid.

A critical digest of international arbitral law, from its eighteenth-century beginnings down to 1926. Fully indexed and annotated. Of it Frederic R. Coudert, writing in the Yale Law Journal, says: "It is the only work in English I know of . . . . marshaling in clear and logical fashion the body of international precedents which have arisen through arbitral tribunals."

The Way: Christ and Evolution.

By Princess Eleanor (Calhoun) Lazarovich-Hrebelianovich.

Octavo, xii+108 pages, frontispiece. 1926. Heavy paper, $1.50, postpaid.

A study in play form of the bearings of scientific discovery on the interpretation of Christ. The author holds that we are on the threshold of a new order, a new mastery of the forces of mind and nature, which she terms the Creative Order and of which she believes Christ partook. With a foreword by David Starr Jordan.

On the Trail of the Russian Famine.

By Frank A. Golder, Professor of History, Stanford University, and Lincoln Hutchinson.

Octavo, xii+320 pages, illustrated from photographs; end-sheet maps by Pedro Lemos. 1927. Blue cloth, $3.50, postpaid.

A vivid narrative of the great famine in the early days of Bolshevism. The authors served from 1921 to 1923 as special investigators for the American Relief Administration in the famine districts of Russia, the Ukraine, and the Caucasus. What they saw, heard, and felt on their travels they recorded in their notebooks, here printed for the first time, to form an intimate account of the political and social life of the Russian people during the lean years.

One Word More on Browning.

By Frances Theresa Russell, Ph.D., Associate Professor of English, Stanford University.

Octavo, xii+162 pages, with a selective bibliography. 1927. $2.50, postpaid.

An admired Victorian poet is shown by the author of these papers to be of extraordinary significance to the present generation as well. Without reverting to dull abstractions and without repeating familiar dicta, the successive sections display one important and interesting facet of Browning after another. The classified bibliography, covering Mrs. Browning as well as her husband, is itself of unique value.

James Boswell's "The Hypochondriack."

Edited by Margery Bailey, Ph.D. (Yale), of the Department of English, Stanford University.

[In press. Ready in the autumn of 1927.]

Seventy essays by Dr. Johnson's biographer, reprinted for the first time from The London Magazine, 1777–1783. Here Boswell has provided for the modern reader an essay series delightful in its intimacy, and important for the new light it casts both upon its distinguished author and upon eighteenth-century ideas and ideals.

Landscape Architecture: A Series of Letters.

By Stephen Child.

Small quarto, xiv+240 pages, illustrated. 1927. Buckram, $6.00, postpaid.

In no other single publication is there presented so much that is pertinent and important to landscape architecture and city planning. Definite principles of landscape design are here set forth simply and clearly, in order that the purposes of the landscape architect may be better understood and his efforts accorded a more sympathetic interest.

Art Principles in House, Furniture, and Village Building.

By Arthur Bridgman Clark, Professor in the Division of Graphic Art, Stanford University.

Small quarto, x+130 pages, 3 plates, 203 figures. 1921. Blue vellum back, with Castilian paper sides, $3.00, postpaid.

A nontechnical guide, fully illustrated, for the builder, teacher of graphic art, or home planner. Harmony between building and grounds, garden design, and interior design are considered, as are city planning and the development of new residence sections.

GENETIC STUDIES OF GENIUS. Edited by Dr. Lewis M. Terman.

Vol. I. Mental and Physical Traits of a Thousand Gifted Children.

By Lewis M. Terman, Professor of Psychology, Stanford University, and Others.

Revised (2d) edition, 1926. Octavo, xvi+648 pages. Cardinal cloth, $5.00, postpaid.

To learn something of the origin, nature, and needs of genius—a subject as important as it is little understood—is the purpose of the studies reported in this series. Volume I presents a study of contemporary school children of unusual mental ability. The study, the most complete ever attempted, was conducted over a period of years. The results as published afford "a clinical picture of the gifted child, a definite characterization of the young genius."

Vol. II. Early Mental Traits of Three Hundred Geniuses.

By Catharine Morris Cox, Ph.D. (Stanford), Psychologist, Central Clinic, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Octavo, xxiv+842 pages. 1926. Cardinal cloth, $5.00, postpaid.

This volume aims at characterizing, with respect to certain mental traits, a group of youths who later became eminent. Characteristics and native abilities which marked these youths for future greatness are examined and evaluated, to form a study valuable in itself, and of particular interest for comparison with the findings of Dr. Terman's study of contemporary gifted children.

THE STANFORD SPANISH SERIES

General Editor, Aurelio M. Espinosa, Professor of Romantic Languages, Stanford University.

[In preparation.]

To include low-priced, well-edited school texts from Spanish literature, for the most part of the modern and contemporary epochs but with some selections from the classic period. Among the early volumes to appear will be the following:

Lecciones de literatura española, by Professor Aurelio M. Espinosa. A primer of Spanish literature, in Spanish, to be used as a reader in upper high school and junior college classes. Ready in August, 1927.

La Lechizada, by Fernando Santivan, a novel of contemporary life first published in 1916. To be edited by Alfred Coester, associate professor of Romanic Languages, Stanford University. Annotated edition, for school use.

Outline and Digest of California School Law and State School System. Revised (1926) edition.

By Ralph W. Swetman, President Humboldt (California) State Teachers College.

Octavo, vii+111 pages, 5 figures, prescribed forms, questions and exercises. Buckram, $1.00, postpaid.

Forms and Suggestions for California Practice.

By William Brownlee Owens, Professor of Law, Stanford University.

The 1924 edition out of print. Orders now received for 1927 edition, two volumes, in preparation.

Personal Hygiene for Women.

By Clelia Duel Mosher, M.D., Associate Professor of Personal Hygiene and Medical Adviser of Women, Stanford University.

July 1927. Octavo, 100 pages, with frontispiece. Cloth, $1.50, postpaid.

A simple, straightforward, and expert treatise, embodying the results of Dr. Mosher's professional experience and research over an extended period.

Machine Work.

By Theron J. Palmateer, Teaching Specialist in Machine Shop Practice, Stanford University.

[Ready in August.]

A manual of machine shop practice approved by the Department of Engineering of Stanford University. The author's long experience as shop instructor and writer of shop texts is reflected on every page. It provides not merely general instruction and specific directions but enough additional material to make it a practical reference work. The products of its successive problems assemble into a useful machine.

Illustrated Flora of the Pacific States.

By LeRoy Abrams, Professor of Botany, Stanford University.

Royal octavo. Vol. I, viii+557 pages; 1299 illustrations. 1923. Buckram, $9.00, postpaid.

[Vols. II and III in preparation.]

The first complete botany of the Pacific States, a region especially rich in wild flora. Every species of fern, flower, tree, and shrub known to grow wild in this region is illustrated and described. The work will be complete in three volumes, of which Volume I, covering Ferns to Birthworts, is now ready.

STANFORD LABORATORY GUIDES
BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES

The Dissection of the Dogfish.

By Edwin C. Starks, Associate Professor of Zoölogy, Stanford University, and Lot D. Howard.

Quarto, 36 pages. 1926. Paper, 75 cents, postpaid.

The Dissection of the Turtle.

By Edwin C. Starks, Associate Professor of Zoölogy, Stanford University, and Lot D. Howard.

[In preparation.]

The Dissection of the Salamander.

By Edwin C. Starks, Associate Professor of Zoölogy, Stanford University, and Delbert O. Haage.

[In preparation.]

Reasonably priced dissection manuals, in which the work is arranged to effect the greatest possible saving of time and material. The scope of the series will be extended to every department of natural science. Each manual will deal with a representative species of which specimens are readily available, and will be prepared by authorities familiar through their own experience with the needs of the classroom and laboratory.

CONTRIBUTIONS FROM THE DUDLEY HERBARIUM OF STANFORD UNIVERSITY

In order to promote research in systematic botany and plant distribution on the Pacific Coast, the Dudley Herbarium will publish from time to time under this heading papers of merit which have been prepared at the Herbarium or are based largely upon its collections. The papers will be edited by Professor LeRoy Abrams, curator of the Herbarium.

Volume I.

No. 1. A Distributional Catalogue of the Lupines of Oregon.

By Charles Piper Smith.

Small quarto, 56 pages. 1927. Paper, $1.00, postpaid.

No. 2. Preliminary Report on the Flora of the Tres Marías Islands.

By Roxana Stinchfield Ferris.

Small quarto, 36 pages, 4 plates. Paper, $1.00, postpaid.

EXTRACT FROM "WE GO FOXHUNTING ABROAD"

(Privately printed)

By CHARLES D. LANIER, Sec'y and Treas. of the Review of Reviews

"In intervals of R. L. S., we read the galley proofs of Harry Worcester Smith's forthcoming book describing his sporting invasion of Westmeath, in Ireland, in 1912, when he took over his American hounds to hunt that country as Master—the only instance, I think, of the use of American hounds in the United Kingdom. He had thoughtfully sent us these advance proofs and they are worth mentioning because the very detailed and voluminous account of his Irish experiences form excellent instruction for any American foxhunter to hazard the Irish banks.

"The volume is always keenly enthusiastic and full of details useful to a sportsman, with now and then a story carrying the true Irish tang."

THE LOW COUNTRY SPEAKS

A Review of "Laguerre, a Gascon of the Black Border," "With Aesop Along the Black Border," "The Captain, Stories of the Black Border"

Hervey Allen, Co-Author of "Carolina Chansons", in The Saturday Review of Literature

The day when even the cultivated reading public confidently expected "The Great Comprehensive American Novel," which was to express the spirit of all these states, has probably passed along with other adolescent literary aspirations. Instead, and in spite of our ruthless standardization, America has wakened to herself by geographical sections. New England, The Hoosier County, and the various divisions of the West can now be dignified by author, book, and dialect. To these the development of the last half-decade has added another section, distinguished in cultural traditions and peculiar to itself ethnically and historically. This is the strip of territory stretching along the South Carolina sea-coast from Georgetown south of Beaufort, into Georgia, penetrating roughly a hundred miles inland, and known locally as the "Low Country." A section which Mr. Ambrose E. Gonzales of Columbia, S. C., whose books we are considering here, has aptly termed the "Black Border."

This romantic and unique section is now thoroughly vocal and awake to its literary possibilities. Some years ago Mr. Heyward and myself in the preface to our collaboration "Carolina Chansons" called attention to its inherent values. Since then, John Bennett writing from Charleston, has contributed his "Madame Margot," a legend of old Charleston, probably still the most colonial city in America; Julia Peterkin writing from Lang Syne Plantation near Columbia, S. C., has given us one of the best and most sympathetic studies of negro plantation life in a generation; Eola Willis has recently added her study of the "Charleston Stage in the 18th Century," replete with the facts and romance of the early American drama; DuBose Heyward in "Skylines and Horizons" has added worthily to his poetical interpretations of his native soil,—and Ambrose E. Gonzales in a series of four rapidly written books, "The Black Border," "The Captain," "With Aesop Along the Black Border," and "Laguerre, a Gascon of the Black Border" has reproduced the strange life of the Low Country with its peculiar and difficult Gullah dialect in a collection of pleasantly humorous stories of Negro characterizations, full of sympathy and pathos.

"Laguerre," the last of the series, may be taken as more or less typical of the others. "A gallant soldier of the Confederacy, formerly a wealthy Sea-Island cotton planter he (Laguerre) lived until about twenty years ago in a cottage on a war-ruined but once splendid plantation; planting a little, hunting now and then. . . . Educated in Paris before the war, and of distinguished Huguenot ancestry, he passionately loved France . . . and in his sensitive honor and courtly manners, and the great blond moustache and imperial worn à la Napoleon III, brought to Toogoodoo a touch of the second empire." Under the greenwood tree, the magnolia and the moss-draped live-oak, Laguerre set up his rural court, and as Justice of the Peace with a grand Gascon manner dispensed a lordly but withal kindly justice to the surrounding Negroes, finding in this compensation for the poverty and restrictions of his environment. The circumstances of the trials, conducted in Gullah, provided characters, jests, and plots for the author. And it is not straining a point to say that these are invariably whimsical, unexpected, and delightful.

"Aesop" and "The Captain" are also collections of short stories about the Negro, all written in the Gullah dialect of the Low Country, which is at once the joy and stumbling block of the reader. Gullah, probably a corruption of Angola, whence many of the Carolina Negroes were brought in the days of the slave-trader, is a pot-pourri of African, French, and English,—all of which have gone the way of least resistance in their reshaping on the thick and lazy lips of the blacks. It is a dialect in the true sense of the word, distinguished by a guttural-quacking sound, and the use of a flat "A." Yard, for instance, is pronounced like "Y" placed before "add." There are also many distinctive words.

Mr. Gonzales is peculiarly fitted to write of the Low Country and about its people in their own patois. He has long lived among them in intimate contact with both Blacks and Whites as editor and owner of The State, one of the few newspapers of his section that has fought consistently for better social, political, and literary standards, even when their upholding meant personal danger. His volumes are published by the State Company of Columbia, S. C., and are well printed, carefully proof-read, well bound, and furnished with attractive wrappers.

Even at this writing it is safe to say that Mr. Gonzales' books are next in order of literary succession to "Uncle Remus" in the plantation tradition and they seem destined to take a by no means dusty place upon the shelf of Americana.

THE BLACK BORDER'S HISTORIAN

HERSCHEL BRICKELL in the New York Evening Post Literary Review

To those who read Mr. Gonzales' delightful book a year or two ago, "The Black Border," the news that he has carried on the tradition to the extent of three more volumes will be most welcome. I know of no one living who can surpass this South Carolinian as a writer of Negro dialect, and he is master of a lingo that would stump any one but a born philologist.

The Negroes in his stories are Gullahs, Gullah probably being a corruption of Angola, whence the forebears of these blacks were brought to the Carolina and Georgia lowlands and the islands that lie off the coast of the two states. The Gullah speech is at once the chiefest charm of Mr. Gonzales' stories and the greatest barrier to their general enjoyment. It presents difficulties that may be surmounted, however, with a little patience and the copious use of the excellent glossary which is a part of "The Black Border."

Once the key is found, the way is open to the enjoyment of some of the most genuinely amusing stories that have ever been written of the Negro race in America. Mr. Gonzales writes mostly of other days when the plantation tradition had not been modified by the hard demands of a mechanistic civilization; he recreates with astonishing verisimilitude the life and times of the post Confederate war period.

When he is not using the Gullah dialect, a speech as rich in quaint turns and picturesque, racy, homely phrases as any I know, he gives us a prose as mellow, as gracious and as rich in color as the Southern autumns of which he writes so happily in "Laguerre."

In this book his central figure is a justice of the peace of Huguenot lineage, who likes nothing better than the sound of his own sonorous voice as he lays down his rough and ready law to the Negroes in his woodland court. Around this temple of justice, roofed over with the blue sky, and around the domestic and social difficulties of the Gullah folk under Laguerre's jurisdiction, Mr. Gonzales has woven one excellent story after another, amusing in no artificial way, but each a genuine study of character in a natural setting.

In "The Captain" are more tales of the Gullahs, in particular one connected story of the parceling of a large plantation among the Negroes which contains the detailed account of the building of a log cabin, a priceless bit of architectural lore. This story is an epic of man's battle with nature and his gradual victory, the fruits of which were lost in this case because the Negroes were lured away by the prospect of work in phosphate mines.

"With Aesop Along the Black Border" is made up of the familiar fables in the Gullah dialect, and very fresh they seem in their new garments. Here, as elsewhere, Mr. Gonzales displays a really amazing grasp of a strange patois, which he writes naturally and fluently.

The Black Border is indeed fortunate to have so fine a historian as Mr. Gonzales. These tales, which he tosses off with such apparent ease and with very evident pleasure to himself, will become in time invaluable records of a vanished period and a passing people.

ALL THE CRITICS ACCLAIM EOLA WILLIS'S PREMIERE

It is not often that a book so much needed comes so aptly and so satisfyingly to meet the distinct need as was the case with this work on "The Charleston Stage" by Miss Eola Willis.

As indicated by the full title—"The Charleston Stage in the XVIII Century, With Social Settings of the Time"—the book is not confined to telling the story of the Stage in Charleston for a crowded century of its course. Its writing, with all the tremendous and pains-taking labor of gathering and ordering its vast details, would have been fully justified, however, even had it been limited to the story of the Stage alone. For in this century were the true beginnings of our national theater, the period in which were laid the solid foundations for all the brilliant and brave achievements that have followed. This alone would make an engaging story—and this story is to be found fully and adequately narrated in Miss Willis's picturesque handling of her large "argument" and intricate scene.

But over and beyond this interest in the Stage, Miss Willis has told us much of the story of the community and port of Charleston and the Carolinian Colony. The "Social Settings of the Time" have been drawn with the eye and brush of the fine painter that she is. She has thus combined the technic of two arts to make her book on the Stage of Charleston in Charleston's most roaring and glowing century a work of enduring value as history and of lasting appeal as picture and story.

The reader gets new views and values of Charleston and the young Colony, working out their own destinies, almost cut off on a vast continent of wilderness, sundered in almost every respect from the Mother Country by the then "estranging sea". Here was rapidly developing—with of course, assistance and inspiration drawn from England and France and from wherever help and inspiration were to be found—a new art of the theater in a new environment and under the most alien conditions, as it seems to us of today, and making a marvelous success of the fine adventure.

This small but vivid colonial city, the capital of a British Province, had something of the importance and vital energy of a Greek colony of the days of Syracuse and Kerkura and Massilia, when the daughter carried to distant shores the best spirit, art, and energy of the Hellenic mother. Charleston was never a "small town", but, from its very beginnings, she was the germ of a large city-ideal, a capital and metropolis in embryo. There was not, therefore, that rawness and crassness of the frontier that would have been fatal to the founding of a Stage worthy the race of Congreve and Shakspere.

But, with the young energy and enterprise of her redundant source, Charleston built theaters, summoned from England and France actors and actresses of the greatest art and reputation to her "boards", and ambitiously essayed new plays and "First Nights" rivaling those of the London of her day.

Miss Willis dramatizes for us the Charleston of her prime, of this, her most brilliant era of art and, perhaps, of civilization at its most spirited hour. Her book may, therefore, be consulted by students of history and of the Stage, for the life of Charleston and kindred cities of the seaboard had tremendous influence upon the life of their hinterlands, in the region of the plantations and of the yet unborn States beyond, for here may be found, for that era, the customs and the manners that make States and communities not less than men.

The value of the book has been very greatly increased by the voluminous and meticulously prepared Index which makes it easy to refer to any incident, record, custom, character, or play that is mentioned in its pages. Attention has been paid in this Index to the value of the book as a true segment of the history of Charleston and of South Carolina.

The critics and reviewers have been very friendly to and appreciative of this work by Miss Willis. Most of them seized at once the chief value of the story of the Stage in Charleston—as history, as chronicle, as memoir. In the few extracts reproduced below from journals, and periodicals, one finds such expressions as:

"A monumental and serviceable volume," says The Outlook.

"A notable contribution to the history and the literature not only of Charleston but of the American stage as well," writes The News and Courier of Charleston.

"This book," says Stark Young the well-known dramatic critic, is crowded with interesting contributions to the history of the American theater and with proud pieces of Charleston glory."

"Miss Willis," says the reviewer in the Theatre Arts Monthly, "has compiled an invaluable record of one of the earliest and most interesting theaters in this country."

"An immense amount of careful research work has gone into the making of this ample volume which offers a real contribution to the history of the stage in the United States . . . . A source-book interesting alike to students of the earliest days of the American theater and delvers into the ever-alluring story of social manners and customs of the early decades of the country," comments The New York Times.

ALPHABETICAL LIST BY AUTHORS

Blackburn, Rev. George A., D. D.

LIFE WORK OF JOHN L. GIRARDEAU, D. D., LL. D.

Dr. Girardeau belonged to a church and an age that gave the world an unusual number of extraordinary men, many of whose lives have been written, covering in a general way, the most important events of his time and locality. This work, therefore is supplemental, showing who he was, and the part he performed in the great movements of his day. Price.....$1.50

Blackburn, Rev. George A., D. D.

SERMONS OF JOHN L. GIRARDEAU, D. D., LL. D.

Dr. Girardeau had all of the gifts that belong to the orator—figure, voice, gesture, emotion, imagination and magnetism. When he was on his feet before an audience, the spirit of the orator dominated him. He was also a profound thinker—analytical, logical, cautious, and clear. When he sat down to write, the spirit of the thinker dominated him. Cloth, with attractive stamping, 12 mo., 412 pages.

Green, Edwin L.

A HISTORY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA

This volume covers the life of the University of South Carolina from Governor Drayton's message to President Mitchell's resignation in 1913. The minutes of the Board of Trustees and the Faculty have been consulted on old points, and all other material that could throw light on any phase of the University's life has been examined. Full cloth, Octavo, 475 pages, illustrated. Price.....$5.00

Hagood, Johnson

MEMOIRS OF THE WAR OF SECESSION AND MEMOIRS OF HAGOOD'S BRIGADE (Complete in one Volume)

During the period to which these Memoirs relate, the author, Johnson Hagood, Brigadier General, C. S. A., kept memoranda and made notes of events with which he was connected. In many instances he was furnished, by his superiors in command, with copies of their official reports of battles and sieges in which he bore a part. Cloth, 496 pages, illustrated. Price.....$2.00

Harman, H. E.

COLLECTED POEMS and THE WINDOW OF SOULS

The author has put into this book of verse the soul-work of ten years—the very joy of living. These poems were written in the idle moments of a very busy period, caught, as it were, from the spirit of inspiration that came unheralded, amid the almost incessant cares of a business career. The volume includes three stories under the general title, "The Window of Souls." Octavo, bound library style, 300 pages. Price.....$2.00

A BAR OF SONG—Poems

Bound in grey cloth with attractive cover design and numerous illustrations. Octavo, 124 pages. Price.....$1.50

Bound in grey cloth with attractive cover design and numerous illustrations. Octavo, 110 pages. Price.....$1.50

Heyward, Jane Screven

BROWN JACKETS—Character Studies of the Carolina Coast Negro

These sketches of the Gullah Negro, a number of which have been given publicly in the author's readings, are not so much pieces of her own creative writing as they were a collaboration written out of the experiences of many friends, white and black. They carry no propaganda, unless it be the unconscious desire to present a sincere impression of the attitude existing between the two races in the Carolina Low Country. Bound in boards, 64 pages, with portrait of the author.

Price $1.00

Hyer, Helen Von Kolnitz

SANTEE SONGS—Poems

This book of verse by a well known young Charleston woman will be of peculiar interest to every one familiar with the landscapes and moods of the low country. Mrs. Hyer has wisely chosen the Santee country, which perhaps more than any other section of the Carolina coastal region may be termed "characteristic" for the background of her poems, as the title indicates. Boards, 52 pages, decorated cover. Price.....$1.00

Jervey, Theodore D.

THE SLAVE TRADE—Slavery and Color

This work constitutes an attempt to put within short compass the main causes of the shifting sectionalism of the people of the United States. Full cloth, 344 pages, with maps and other illustrations. Price.....$2.00

Jervey, Claire

Willis, Eola

THE CHARLESTON STAGE IN THE XVIII CENTURY

The claims of Charleston, S. C. to a prominent place in the earliest history of American drama have generally been overlooked, mainly because of the difficulty of obtaining the necessary information. The history of the Charleston stage has not only now been written, but it forms so important a part of the annals of the American theatre, that the latter are incomplete without it, for it furnishes a connecting link, hitherto lacking, in the chain of earliest plays in this country. Regular 8vo., full cloth, gold titles, 500 pages and illustrations. Price.....$5.00

BOOKS
STUDY OF LANGUAGES
ARE OUR SPECIALTY

The value of business libraries, for large as well as for small organizations, is now universally recognized, language books necessarily forming an important part of them, and of private libraries as well.

Facilitating business and social correspondence with other countries, time and effort spent in the study of foreign languages are sure to bring valuable returns, and as our stock of books in this line is unsurpassed, we invite inspection or correspondence regarding the same.

Due to present conditions, prices are subject, more or less, to fluctuations and we therefore refrain from submitting here our full price-list of language text-books, dictionaries, grammars, conversation-books etc. in foreign languages. Copies of this catalogue, our No. 17c, will be mailed gratis on application, and quotations (in conformity with the prevailing rate of exchange) for such items as may be specifically indicated by our correspondents will be cheerfully given. Our long established reputation for fair dealing makes the invariable securing of quotations before purchasing needless, as our customers may depend upon our filling all orders at the lowest prices compatible with conditions existing at the time.

From among the multitude of languages, represented by books in our stock, we would call attention especially to the following, our assortment of which is exceptionally comprehensive and up-to-date, the individual tongues also appearing in various combinations:

Czechoslovakian, Danish, Dutch (Hollandish), English, French, German, Hungarian, Italian, Portuguese, Roumanian, Russian, Spanish, Swedish.

Of the more important of these languages we always carry in stock technological and other scientific dictionaries containing the most modern terms employed in the arts and sciences.

We also beg to call attention to our large supply of text-books in Universal Languages, such as Esperanto and Ido, to which we are continually adding new publications.

ANNOUNCEMENT
OF
E. STEIGER & CO.

ESTABLISHED 1864 — 49 MURRAY STREET NEW YORK — P. O. BOX 905 CITY HALL STATION

As a result of our foresight in having acquired considerable stocks of paper etc. before the excessive rise in prices began, we have been able to maintain the original pre-war list prices on the language text-books of our own publication and also the trade discount of 33⅓ % on same for several years, and while we still allow the special trade discount of 33⅓ %, we regret to state that increased costs of production have obliged us to revise our price-list.

In consequence of the unsettled conditions in foreign exchange, and the lack of uniformity with which the various foreign publishers make their prices, it is not, at present, possible to quote fixed prices on all publications to be imported, but purchasers may rest assured that any order with which they may favor us will be filled as expeditiously and at as low a figure as circumstances permit.

We shall be glad to mail available prospectuses and catalogues of imported books and periodicals, and to give quotations on the same.

Having continually enlarged our department for kindergarten material and kindred school supplies, we are particularly well equipped to fill large or small orders promptly.

Estimates on School Board Contracts cheerfully furnished to the Trade.

AHN'S NEW AMERICAN INTERPRETER

For Learning the English language by Self-Instruction

Ahn's

Neuer Amerikanischer Dolmetscher

für Deutsche,

zum Erlernen der Englischen Sprache ohne Lehrer.

This is an up-to-date edition at a very low price, of our Interpreter which has been so favorably known throughout the United States and Europe, for decades, in consequence of its great practical value for Germans intending to emigrate to this country and also for immigrants not yet conversant with the English language.

The first portion of the book is devoted to the essentials of English Grammar, a thorough perusal of the remaining pages soon enabling the student to express himself properly in English and to acquire other valuable information, relative to corresponding, advertising etc.

Considering the durable binding, good quality of paper and clear type throughout its 331 pages, the price is considerably lower than that at which other, similar publications are selling.

ADCOCK, A. St. John

†GODS OF MODERN GRUB STREET. Frequenters of Grub Street, that famous haunt of London writers, eye with pride and envy those authors who are not only England's best but her most popular writers. It is of these gods of modern Grub Street that the well-known editor and critic writes here, with much discerning comment. Hardy, Kipling, Galsworthy, Bennett, Hutchinson, May Sinclair, Noyes and Mackenzie are among the 32 authors included. With 32 portraits after photographs by E. O. Hoppé. Cloth, 12mo $2.50

ALLINSON, A. R.

*THE WAR DIARY OF EMPEROR FREDERICK III: 1870-1871. The diary of the ex-Kaiser's father, written during the Franco-Prussian War. By his orders the diary was hidden for fifty years and is now given to the world for the first time. An important feature is its indictment of the "Prussianism" which eventually capsized his own son. As a personal record of what the writer saw and heard, of his own experiences and impressions, this diary gives a vivid and intimate picture of the period with many episodes of a highly interesting nature. Fully illustrated, cloth, 8vo.....$5.00

ANDERSEN, Hans Christian

THE ANDERSEN FAIRY BOOK. A new, beautiful and notably inexpensive edition of these favorite fairy tales of childhood. The collection is unusually large. Frontispiece in color and many black-and-white illustrations by Florence Choate and Elizabeth Curtis. Cloth, 4to.....$1.50

ANDERSON, A. J.

*THE JOYOUS FRIAR. A fascinating biography of Fra Filippo Lippi, the Florentine painter and Carmelite friar. The narrative deals with the love affair which developed between him and the lovely novice who was his model during the painting of the Madonna for the Convent of Santa Margharita. The story of their love and all the subsequent unhappiness which the world knows, is told with the high tensity of a novel. 8 illustrations from paintings of Fra Lippo Lippi. Cloth, 8vo.....$3.00

ANDREWS, William, and LANG, Elsie M.

OLD ENGLISH TOWNS. Charming descriptive and historical accounts of forty-three important English towns—a book for the general reader as well as the student who delights in the picturesque past. With frontispiece in color and 31 halftone illustrations. Cloth, 4to $4.50

ARABIAN NIGHTS ENTERTAINMENTS, THE

An admirable selection for young people of the famous 1001 tales of the Princess Scheherazade. With a preface by Frederic Taber Cooper. (Stokes' Gift Book Series.) With 12 illustrations in color. Cloth, 8vo. $3.00

ARNOLD, T. W. (Translator)

THE LITTLE FLOWERS OF ST. FRANCIS OF ASSISI. An unusually beautiful edition of the famous episodes in the life of St. Francis and his followers through which one can see the Saint and his friars as vividly as did the people of Umbria and Tuscany who actually beheld and loved them. With 32 illustrations in color and black-and-white. Cloth, 8vo. $3.00

ATHERTON, Gertrude

SLEEPING FIRES. Mrs. Atherton's striking plot is laid in San Francisco and New York in 1870. "An extraordinary story, that moves swiftly, even breathlessly, developing a situation so unusual that it borders on nightmare."—Hildegarde Hawthorne, N. Y. Times. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.00

†THE SISTERS-IN-LAW. A brilliant novel of two women and a man in San Francisco Society and out of it. "Mrs. Atherton has never done a finer novel . . . never put more into one volume . . . a deep, rich, searching book."—Charles Hanson Towne, in N. Y. Herald. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.00

†THE AVALANCHE. A mystery novel of California society which the N. Y. Tribune calls "a romance of singular power and beauty." Cloth, 12mo.....$2.00

TOWER OF IVORY. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.00

THE SPLENDID IDLE FORTIES. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.50

AUBRY, Octave

*THE LOST KING. A novel which deals with the disappearance of Louis XVII, son of Marie Antoinette, about whose fate history is silent. The book purports to be the record of the Comte de Vaison's research into the mystery in 1819. He goes through all the available records and interviews all the persons concerned with the little prince's last days. He discovers that the Dauphin did not die in the Temple, but was stolen by a plot of Barras and Josephine. Translated from the French. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.50

AUER, Leopold

†MY LONG LIFE IN MUSIC. The greatest living teacher of the violin, master of Elman, Heifetz and other great artists, gives us a notable volume of memoirs, whose interest is by no means restricted to music lovers. Prof. Auer, born in 1845, selects from the rich experience of his seventy years in music, the most significant, interesting happenings and writes absorbingly of such topics as The Paris of Napoleon III, Musical Life at the Russian Courts, My Experiences as Conductor of the Russian Musical Society Orchestra, Two Moscow Coronations, A Concert Tour in the Balkans, and Musical Life in America. With 47 portraits. Cloth, large 8vo.....$5.00

†VIOLIN PLAYING AS I TEACH IT. The greatest living teacher of the violin, the master of Zimbalist, Elman, Heifetz, Seidel, etc., reveals for the first time in print the secrets of his teaching, the principles practised by his famous pupils. The book is of utmost importance to both students and teachers. The only book in which this great teacher has formulated—for those whom he cannot personally instruct—his own lessons in mastering the violin. With ten portraits. Cloth, 8vo. $3.00

Frederick A. Stokes Company, New York

AUSTEN, Jane

†LOVE AND FREINDSHIP. A newly discovered story, written by Jane Austen in her 'teens—both an important literary find and an uproariously funny book. Zona Gale, N. Y. Times, says to have read it "is henceforth a part of literary experience. . . . Here Jane Austen is—human, laughing, alive, taken unaware." Introduction by Gilbert K. Chesterton. Cloth, 12mo....$1.75
Gay chintz jacket.....$2.00

BROMFIELD, Louis

*A GOOD WOMAN. This novel by the new Pulitzer Prize winner completes Bromfield's study of one phase of American life. It slips into place as the keystone of an arch constructed of "The Green Bay Tree," "Possession" and "Early Autumn." "A Good Woman" is the human and moving story of Philip, a missionary who lost his faith and had to begin life over again; of his wife, Naomi; and of Mary Conyngham. But it is in the end the story of his mother, Emma Downes, because it is her shadow which lies across the lives of all three. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.50

†EARLY AUTUMN. Winner of the 1926 Pulizer Prize. This third "panel" in Mr. Bromfield's notable series of novels dealing with modern American life, tells of a New England family, outwardly rich and flourishing, but decayed at the heart. Into the unhappy tangle of their lives comes Sabine Callender and her daughter Therese. It is the patriarch of the family and a young, vigorous American boy (the son of Lily Shane) who, with the aid of the cynical Sabine, precipitate the solution of the intricate puzzle. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.00

†POSSESSION. An essentially American story and a remarkable picture of modern society, whose heroine is Ellen, cousin of the lovely Lily Shane of "The Green Bay Tree." Beginning life in a mill town of the Middle West, Ellen, without friends, money or influence, acquires in the end those things her nature demands—wealth, power, fame. Her progress takes her through many experiences in America and in Europe. But when she reaches the peak of her own building she stands there magnificent—and alone. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.50

THE GREEN BAY TREE. Is it true that no one of us ever knows the other? No husband his own wife? No mother her own daughter? It is this idea upon which this novel is built. It tells the story of two American sisters—one beautiful and lawless, the other her opposite. The setting is largely a great American steel town of the Middle West. "Rises at times so near to the proportions of a great American novel that one is tempted to describe it thus in precise terms."—E. W. Osborne, N. Y. World. Jacket in color. Cloth, 12mo..$2.00

BROWER, Harriette

LOFTING, Hugh

*DOCTOR DOLITTLE'S GARDEN. In the garden lives a host of creatures who have naturally gravitated to the little animal doctor, and it is the insects that play a large part in his new adventures. When the good doctor sets out to discover all there is to know about insects, many of the small creatures eagerly tell him their life stories and finally he learns of a giant race of moths. The Dogs' Museum also figures largely in the new book, one of whose choicest exhibits was that of bones chewed by famous dogs! Mr. Lofting has added many of his own amusing illustrations. Cloth, 8vo. $2.50

DOCTOR DOLITTLE'S CARAVAN. The Doctor's amusing adventures with an animal theatrical troupe and the canary opera. Canaries carry the solos while the choruses are recruited from other bird families. The orchestra consists of a sewing machine, a harness chain, razor strop and a hammer. The text is fully as delightful and the illustrations as humorous as those of the earlier books. Fully illustrated in color and black-and-white by Mr. Lofting. Cloth, 8vo. $2.50

†DOCTOR DOLITTLE'S ZOO. From running a circus the good Dr. Dolittle is drawn farther into the business of entertaining, and with Dr. Dolittle's Zoo, the Canary Opera, and the Puddleby Pantomime, he and his animal friends find fresh adventures on their travels. New characters appear in this volume, as individual and attractive as the original Dab-dab, Gub-gub, and Polynesia. Profusely illustrated in Mr. Lofting's inimitable style. Cloth, 8vo.....$2.50

†DOCTOR DOLITTLE'S CIRCUS. This book takes up the tale of the lovable little doctor at the point where "The Story of Doctor Dolittle" left off, and tells all that happens after the Doctor arrived from Africa with the grateful monkeys' gift of the Pushmi-pullyu; how they join Blossom's Circus and how the Doctor achieves a triumph in the sawdust ring and engineers a thrilling escape. They have many adventures and earn more than enough to pay the Doctor's debts, while the Doctor wins the love of all the circus animals by seeing that justice is done them. Profusely illustrated. Cloth, 8vo.....$2.50

†PORRIDGE POETRY. A little book for little folk—forty-five inimitable drawings by Hugh Lofting, each illustrating a ridiculously funny original rhyme which will delight the child's heart. With title page in two colors and cover inlay and jacket in full color, (uniform with "The Story of Mrs. Tubbs"). Cloth, oblong, 12mo. $1.00

†DOCTOR DOLITTLE'S POST OFFICE. Doctor Dolittle discovers that there is not only an animal language but animal writing as well. So it doesn't take him long to see the immense possibilities in a mail service for the birds and animals. This book tells all about this fastest mail service in the world—in Hugh Lofting's own inimitable style. With frontispiece in color and 76 black-and-white illustrations by the author. Cloth, 8vo.....$2.50

†THE STORY OF MRS. TUBBS. The creator of the famous Doctor Dolittle has originated another character sure to be liked by little children in Mrs. Tubbs, whose story and that of her dog and her duck and her pig, is told here. A simple little tale, printed in large type and just enough on a page to make easy reading. There are many inimitable illustrations in color and black-and-white by Mr. Lofting. Cloth, oblong, 12mo...$1.25

†THE VOYAGES OF DOCTOR DOLITTLE. It is Tommy Stubbins, the cobbler's son, who tells this story of Doctor Dolittle's wonderful voyage to Spidermonkey Island. "Not since Lewis Carroll has an author responded to an encore more successfully than Hugh Lofting. . . . The sterling qualities of the Kindly One, as the good doctor is dubbed, shine undimmed through the adventurous pages of the Voyages."—Atlantic Monthly. With many humorous illustrations in color and black-and-white by the author. (Winner of the John Newbery Medal for the "most distinguished contribution to American literature for children in 1922.") Cloth, 8vo. $2.50

†THE STORY OF DOCTOR DOLITTLE. A tale of the animal's own doctor and his amazing adventures. Hugh Walpole, in a delightful Introduction says, "Without being at all an undue praiser of times past, one can say without hesitation that until the appearance of Hugh Lofting, the successor of Miss Yonge, Mrs. Ewing, Mrs. Gatty and Lewis Carroll had not appeared. . . . This book is a work of genius. . . . There it is—the first real children's classic since 'Alice.'" With colored frontispiece, 33 unique illustrations in black-and-white and decorative initials. Cloth, 8vo.....$2.00

MILLS, Lady Dorothy

*THROUGH LIBERIA. An account of the most adventurous of the author's solitary journeys. Liberia is that romantic West African republic which was founded by American philanthropists for repatriated negro slaves. Through the trackless interior, Lady Dorothy Mills pushed her way to places which no white woman had ever seen, exploring the country of the "Human Leopards," one of the few remaining cannibal districts. With 38 illustrations and a map. Cloth, 8vo.....$3.00

MILN, Louise Jordan

*IN A YUN-NAN COURTYARD. For sheer beauty of scene and luxuriance of color this story is surpassed by none of Mrs. Miln's earlier Chinese love stories. So Wing—soldier, trader, lover, musician, bandit—moves gallantly through the tale. A veritable Chinese Robin Hood, he has it in his power to make or mar the double romance which is unfolded in a series of thrilling events. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.00

†IT HAPPENED IN PEKING. The quaint old city of Peking and the Boxer rebellion are the background of this new story of China, with an American business man and an English girl as the central figures. Through the romance of a young Manchu girl and a Chinese lad the Chinese atmosphere of the book is made more poignant. Cloth, 12mo. $2.00

"I like this new book better than any I've written since 'Green Gables,'" says the author. And certainly the reader will see in Emily all the captivating charm, the lovableness and welcome sense of humor that endeared Anne to young and old. With frontispiece in color. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.00
The 3 "Emily" books, boxed as a set..$6.00

†THE BLUE CASTLE. At twenty-nine Valency Sterling, a shy, proud girl who had spent all her days in an uninteresting small town, was told she had only a year to live. Determined to have one real fling, she is swept into a sudden marriage with a mysterious young scamp from the Canadian woods. How she solves her new and baffling problems makes a delightful story. Cloth, 12mo. $2.00

†RILLA OF INGLESIDE. Rilla is the daughter of Anne of Green Gables—a glowing, impetuous, fun-loving girl. How she faces the problems of the American girl in war time and how she is fitted for a happiness greater than her dreams, makes the story. With frontispiece in color. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.00

†ANNE'S HOUSE OF DREAMS. A wholesome novel of a sea-coast community in which the popular Anne Shirley, now Mrs. Gilbert Blythe, is the heroine. Gayety, common sense and happiness pervade the story. Frontispiece in color. Cloth, 12mo.....$2.00

†RAINBOW VALLEY. This story continues the married life of Anne Shirley at Four Winds Harbour. For the most part it is concerned with the experiences of Anne's four children, but there is as much pure romance here as in Miss Montgomery's older books. Frontispiece in color. Cloth, 12mo. $2.00

MOON, Grace and Carl

*THE FLAMING ARROW. An Indian story for boys, which is not only a corking tale but also a valuable contribution to the literature of Indian life. Mr. Moon treats the Indians with his usual sympathetic understanding of a people different in social customs but splendidly worthy of admiration. Many of the every-day customs and habits of the Indians come into the unfolding of the tale but its rapid action never slackens. Cloth, 8vo.....$2.50

†LOST INDIAN MAGIC. A thrilling story of mystery and adventure, based on an old Indian legend, especially interesting to boys and girls of Boy Scout and Camp Fire age. It has educational value as a true portrayal of early Indian life. Illustrated in color. Cloth, 4to $2.50

INDIAN LEGENDS IN RHYME. Legends gathered at first hand from the Indians of the Southwest, have been written in rhyme for little readers, showing them Indian life and surroundings, through the eyes of the Indian child. Illustrated in color. Cloth, 4to. $1.00

NITCHIE, Edward B.

†LIP-READING: Principles and Practice. Revised Edition. This text-book on lip-reading which, since its original publication seven years ago, has become recognized as the authority on the subject, has been carefully revised in every respect. Plans for the revision were complete before Mr. Nitchie's death and the changes are based on his own notes and experience and the constructive criticism of his associates at the N. Y. School for the Hard of Hearing. Cloth, 12mo..$2.50

NITCHIE, Elizabeth Helm

ADVANCED LESSONS IN LIP-READING. In response to a country-wide demand by teachers in lip-reading for adequate lessons for advanced pupils, the Principal of the Nitchie School of Lip-Reading, New York, has compiled this authoritative book for the countless students who need advanced exercises. In addition to the carefully selected exercises there are descriptions of games to play, lists of special books for reading, etc. Equally adapted for school or home use. Intended to supplement Mr. Nitchie's standard text "Lip Reading: Principles and Practice." Cloth, 8vo.....$2.50

NOBLE, Sam

SAM NOBLE, A. B. 'Tween Decks in the Seventies. The highly engrossing tale of Sam Noble, who joined the English navy at the age of sixteen. The carefree, busy life of the training ship, amusing anecdotes of his mates, amusing memories of voyages and foreign sights are described with humor and charm. Frontispiece. Cloth, 8vo..$3.00

NORWAY, Arthur H.

NAPLES PAST AND PRESENT. A picturesque and romantic description of Naples, telling its history, its traditions, and giving a wealth of information hard to obtain in other volumes. Compact in form, with 25 pages in color, it fills in the countless gaps that the guide-books leave. Cloth, 8vo, $3.50

NOYES, Alfred

*DICK TURPIN'S RIDE: And Other Poems. Recalling Noyes' earlier ballads, the title poem of this new volume is a rollicking narrative of the famous English highwayman of the 18th Century and of his marvelous ride from London to York. The other poems of the collection are now published in this country for the first time. Cloth, 12mo. $1.50

†THE BOOK OF EARTH. The second volume of the poet's great trilogy. "The Torch-Bearers." In the present book Mr. Noyes deals with the epic story of the earth as unfolded by great discoveries from the time of the Greeks down to the modern evolutionists. The poem opens and concludes with scenes in the Grand Canyon. Cloth, 8vo. $2.50

†WATCHERS OF THE SKY. The first volume of a trilogy under the general title of The Torch-bearers, which paints in narrative verse a vivid and mighty picture of the march of science through the ages. This first volume deals with the astronomers. "Passages which come to life and lift one high among those stars and planets. . . . A noble thing to have done."—N. Y. Tribune. With notable jacket and cover inlay in full color by Spencer B. Nichols. Cloth, 8vo, $2.50

†SOME ASPECTS OF MODERN POETRY. The well-known poet deals with the essential principles of English poetry from Shakespeare to the present day, approaching many of the poets from an entirely new angle. The standpoint of his essays is not that of the Victorian period or of the last decade, but of the period upon which criticism is now entering. That is, Mr. Noyes regards the 19th century poets in their historical perspective, as the future will regard them, not as the antagonists of contemporary ideas. Cloth, 8vo. $2.50

THE HIDDEN PLAYER. A group of unusual short stories, some humorous, some tragic, which show that the famous poet can write vivid, imaginative prose as successfully as poetry. One of the stories is laid in the Painted Desert of Arizona and another on the California coast. Cloth, 12mo..$2.00

†COLLECTED POEMS: Three Volumes. A complete edition of the poet's work to Autumn, 1920. Vol. 1 includes "The Flower of Old Japan," "The Progress of Love," "The Forest of Wild Thyme" and "Drake"; Vol. II, "The Enchanted Island," "Sherwood" and "Tales of the Mermaid Tavern"; Vol. III, "The Elfin Artist," "The New Morning," "The Lord of Misrule," "A Belgian Christmas Eve" and "The Wine Press." The Stratford Magazine

A Monthly Literary Publication of an Unusual Character

YOU now have an opportunity of possessing literary gems, both of fiction and poetry, such as you have never had before.

The Stratford Magazine is devoted to the heralding of new authors, and to the reproduction of masterpieces of foreign literature, now available only in foreign tongues.

It contains one original piece of American fiction each month.

It also contains one translated story, by a foreign author.

It contains the verse of the poets of the present, selected with great care, and judged solely on their merit.

It contains short masterpieces of prose, either originally written in English, or translated from a foreign tongue.

It is distinctive in both its physical character, and in its contents. This is especially true of the latter, because it contains both prose and poetry not usually available to lovers of literature.

It is primarily a magazine for those who are seeking the beautiful, the esoteric, the things that appeal to the soul as well as to the mind.

In brief, each issue is a literary feast.

CLEOPATRA'S PRIVATE DIARY

By Henry Thomas

The keynote of this fascinating volume is struck in the preface, in which Cleopatra states that her revelations are what "one lady of refinement may say to another lady of refinement when there are no gentlemen present."
The story is "intimate" to the extreme, not only in the disclosure of the secret thoughts of "the greatest vamp in history" but in the details of the wild life in Rome into which she was thrown on her visit to Cæsar. Since Cleopatra did most of her living at night, the reader will get a picture of Rome in its most exotic mood, while learning for the first time what Cleopatra thought of the world, not what the world thought of her. It is by far the most entertaining, brilliant and humorous volume that has been published in many years. $2.00

FIRST ESTATE, THE

By Charles A. L. Reed

A realistic novel of American life. The central character, John Maitland, goes out to teach a strange, new philosophy underlying human behavior. What happens when he gets to the plain people with his ethics, what the churches and schools do to him and what he does to them, make up the rapidly succeeding situations. $2.50

GIRL FROM GRAND PRE, THE

By William Miller Bartlett

This is the story of the varied experiences of a country girl who went to New York to live with her rich aunt. Because of her beauty and charm, she made many friends and was much feted by the most exclusive society. How she married the scion of a wealthy family and yet became a penniless widow, and how she ultimately found her true love and regained happiness is all told in an interesting style. $2.00

SON OF THE NILE, A

By Simon Robert Hoover

This book gathers the romance and glamour of the ancient valley of the Nile, with its mysterious power to charm all generations and races, and sets them forth in a modernized story of intrigue, treachery, faithfulness, superstition, lofty ideals, big game hunting, ambuscades, battles, ambition, passion, courage, love, and attainment. To put it briefly, it is a cross-section of life as it was lived in the land of the pyramids and sphinxes a generation after the time of Tutankhamen. $2.00

BEST SHORT STORIES OF THE WORLD

Edited by Konrad Bercovici

All the stories in this book contain that mysterious something which has enabled their authors to get into the hearts and libraries of every generation. What is that universal quality that has made these stories immortal? Read them and see for yourself.

Perez*, The Birthday of the Infanta by Oscar Wilde, The Lost Words of Love by Catulle Mendès, I'm a Fool by Sherwood Anderson, The Easter Torch by I. L. Caragiale, Makar Chudra by Maxim Gorki, What Men Live By by Leo Tolstoi, Life of Ma Parker by Katherine Mansfield, Madame Tellier's Establishment by Guy de Maupassant, Lazarus by Leonid Andreyev, The Gentleman from San Francisco by Ivan Bunin, Saidjah by Multatuli, Montes the Matador by Frank Harris, The Gold Bug by Edgar Allan Poe, The Party by Anton Chekhov and The Fourth Nail, a gypsy legend as told by Murdo to the Author. . $2.50

THE BEST HUMOR OF 1925

Edited by Nathan Haskell Dole and Harold S. Dole

Three hundred and fifty-eight pages of wit, satire, humor, parody, humorous verse—a collection of the biggest and best laughs of 1925.

Gathered from all sources, with great care, and with an idea of presenting one of the greatest anthologies of humor ever published.

Among the many humorists represented in this volume are the following: Will Rogers, Ring Lardner, Carolyn Wells, H. L. Mencken, George Jean Nathan, Holworthy Hall, Stephen Leacock, Octavus Roy Cohen, Franklin P. Adams, Ellis Parker Butler, Rube Goldberg, Nina Wilcox Putnam, Robert Benchley, Al Jolson, James Stevens, Webster, Christopher Ward, Florenz Ziegfeld, Harry Kemp, George Allan England, Milt Gross, Stuart Little, Henry A. Shute, Arthur Guiterman, Don Herold, etc., etc., etc. $2.00

RALPH 124C 41+

A Romance of the Year 2660

By Hugo Gernsback

Not since the publication of the imaginative romances and stories of Jules Verne, has there appeared a book of this character.

Against an amazing background of mechanical, electrical and chemically altered life of mankind there is set a brilliant and colorful romance in the life of the greatest living scientist of that age.

Ralph's love for the beautiful stranger, his conquest of his rival, and the worsting of the great saturnine Martian, culminating in a running fight in space with tragedy and terror conquered by almost unbelievable and incredible weapons make one of the most interesting and gripping stories ever told. Illustrated. $2.00

THE BEST COLLEGE SHORT STORIES 1924-1925

Edited by H. T. Schnittkind, Ph.D. and H. C. Baker

These stories have the crisp, fresh viewpoint of youth, unafraid, daring, brimming with life, fire and imagination. As a group, they combine skill, beauty, intelligent observation. They are unhampered by tradition, commercialism or convention. Each story differs from the others. Here are tales of which older and more experienced professional writers might be proud. The collection is a cross-section of the talent of the writers of the future.

In addition to presenting what the publishers deem stories that show sufficient talent—even genius, which might be well used as models, there are incorporated in the book:

Letters from editors of the leading magazines, giving in detail their short story requirements.

A list of the leading magazines of the country—and addresses.

Numerous articles by professional short story writers, telling how they won success. $2.50

THE GOLD POINT and Other Strange Stories

By Charles L. Jackson

These are stories of imagination, such as are seldom written. They are ghostly, weird, eerie, dealing with great psychic forces and powers beyond this mundane existence.

The stories are unique in their imaginative flights, each story being distinctive. They will not only provide a thrill and a genuine enjoyment, but will stimulate your imagination. There is no imitative note. They are wholly original, and the author is blazing a new trail in this work. This is a collection of stories to keep, read and reread. . . $2.00

ANIMAL NATURE AND OTHER STORIES

By Stanton D. Kirkham

A group of stories by a naturalist and psychologist embracing striking tales of the lives of wild animals, moral crises in the lives of men, psychic changes involving amazing situations, told with dramatic power and much charm. Illustrated. $2.00

CONCERNING MARTHA

By Charlotte L. White

Concerning Martha is a wholesome love story about the kind of people one meets every day. It carries the reader through the period of Martha's rather pathetic childhood, through her discontented womanhood, when she marries in haste to escape boredom and repented at leisure for some time afterward. It tells of her battle with conditions and with herself—when she came to a realization of her faults, —and of the loyal, tender, determined Aaron, who fought for her and with her to bring about a happy solution of her difficulties. $2.00

SNAPPY WESTERN STORIES

By Elois F. Elden

A group of tales of typical western life of California and New Mexico. These are pictures of market streets in San Francisco, the cowboy life in southern California, of the little main street in Santa Fe and other fascinating corners of the West, written by a Western author. . . 75 cents

THE GREATEST GOOD

By Belle Willey Gue

This novel deals with the Civil War, many actual incidents, some of which have never been related, being recorded in the course of the story. The Mississippi River furnishes the undertone of the book. $2.00

MARY'S SECRET

By Harriet S. Collins

An absorbing novel concerning a strange secret of parentage —one that will hold the reader fascinated through the story of a young girl's romance and its surprising climax. $2.00

LOTTERY OF LOVE, THE and Other Gambols

History, Biography and Travel

THE WORLD'S DEBT TO THE IRISH

By James J. Walsh, M.D., Ph.D., Sc.D.

Author of The World's Debt to the Catholic Church, What Civilization Owes to Italy, Eating and Health, etc.

A search, by one of the most brilliant writers of the country into the achievements of the Irish race. The book is written after an intensive study of other periods and other races besides the Irish, so that it represents the value of comparative researches in the history of civilization, on a background of broad familiarity with what is best in the history of humanity.

As Dr. Walsh brought to light a great mass of intensely interesting and valuable information in his "World's Debt to the Catholic Church," so he writes in glowing terms of the achievements of the Irish race, and the benefits it has conferred on humanity all over the world.

Among the subjects discussed are: Missionaries of Christianity and Culture — England; Missionaries of Christianity and Culture — Continental Europe, Asia, Africa — America; Great Irish Literature; Influence of Irish Literature on World Literature; Irish Music; The Invention of Rhyme in Poetry; Beautiful Book Making; Irish Jewelry; St. Patrick; The Round Tower and the High Cross; Depth and Breadth of Irish Education; Ancient Irish Medicine; St. Bridget and her companions and successors.

The book has an appendix, giving some fascinating sidelights on The Irish Brogue Shakespeare's English; Irish Initiative and Inventive Genius, and Modern Irish Missionaries of the Spirit. There are also copious notes to go with the text. $2.50

BETWEEN TWO WARS

By Prof. James Mark Baldwin

A book of memories and opinions by the American philosopher, James Mark Baldwin, former professor in Princeton and Johns Hopkins, now of Paris.

Professor Baldwin, who is honorary Doctor of Oxford, Geneva, Glasgow, Sc., and Member of the Institute of France, recalls his memories extending the sixty years between our Civil War, in the midst of which he was born in Columbia, S. C., and the Great War in which he passed through many exciting and moving scenes. His personal activities and associations beginning in the reconstruction period in South Carolina from Toronto to Oxford and Paris via Mexico, include extended professional terms at Princeton and Baltimore.

Filled with anecdote and illustration, these chapters discuss Princeton, Johns Hopkins and American Education in the 80's and 90's; then life in Oxford and England where relations were established with scholars and public men. Other chapters discuss Mexico under Diaz and the American Mexican policy. The writer has been special adviser to the Mexican government and professor in the National University of Mexico. The war descriptions include accounts, with official reports and illustrations, of the torpedo attack on the "Sussex" in the English Channel in March 1916, which stirred American opinion and nearly cost the writer and his family their lives; life in Paris during the war, incidents in the trenches and on official tours made to the front as guest of the British and French governments: American political policy and American War activities and the character and rôle of President Wilson with whom Professor Baldwin was associated for ten years on the Princeton faculty. Other figures which pass under his review are those of William James, Grover Cleveland, Mark Twain, together with Englishmen such as Bryce and Balfour, and Frenchmen such as Poincaré, Millerand and Clemenceau, his remarks being all based on personal data.

The author has gathered together selections from his war papers and addresses, all inspired by enthusiasm for the Allied Cause, those dating from 1914 when Professor Baldwin belonged to the group of men who publicly condemned the policy of neutrality.

Included are many "Letters Received" by the author, selected from his files of correspondence. They illustrate the impressions of men given in the book from President James McCosh, written in 1885 to Bergson, in 1920 from Simon Newcomb, in the nineties to Henry James. Among these letters figures a selection from a file of unpublished letters and cards from William James, a correspondence from 1890 to James' death in 1910.

Possibly the feature of the entire work, which will be of greatest interest apart from the chapters on the war is the writer's frank and deliberate characterization of Woodrow Wilson and William James. Illustrated. Two volumes. Boxed. (In Preparation) $10.00

TALL TIMBERS

By Chesla C. Sherlock

The stories of eight great giants in early American History responsible for the ideals which established the Republic, and guided it safely through the middle period marked by the Civil War. The author has delved deep into the history of these great men, bringing many new facts to light and presenting the more intimate sides of their natures. In this volume Mr. Sherlock contrasts Mason and Franklin, Washington and Jackson, Hamilton and Madison, and Jefferson and Lincoln. An invaluable volume for the student, teacher, librarian, home-maker, and—most of all—for the American.

$3.00

LOG OF A CIRCUMNAVIGATOR, THE

By George A. Johnson

In this book the author recounts the outstanding features of a year's continuous travel through Hawaii, Japan, China, Straits Settlements, Ceylon, India, Egypt, France, Germany, the Low Countries and England.

The tales are unique in their frank observations on the human characteristics of the various peoples with whom Colonel Johnson came in contact, and the scenic attractions of these far off lands. The yarns are spun in a happy, conversational manner, and will provide several hours of rare entertainment for the reader. Illustrated. . . $2.00

THE LAST CRUISE

By Mrs. Louise K. Sparrow

THE WORLD'S DEBT TO THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

By James J. Walsh, M.D., Ph.D., Sc.D.

Not in any single volume has there been compressed so much information about the enormous debt the world owes the Catholic Church throughout the ages.

It shows how the Church has developed the sense of beauty, strengthened man's realization of his duty, cultivated his love of philosophy and literature, spurred him on in sculpture, architecture, music, literature, painting and in the arts and crafts.

A book of genuine inspiration for both the clergy and layman, it is conceded by thousands to be one of the greatest and most brilliant of Dr. Walsh's works. It is the complete answer to those who would destroy religion.

Both in America and abroad, the book has been proclaimed the greatest Catholic book published in recent years, not alone for the great amount of information it contains, but for the concise and comprehensive manner in which it is presented. $2.00

GREAT SERMONS OF THE WORLD

Compiled and Edited by Rev. Clarence E. Macartney

"How can I get the most interesting material for my next sermon or lecture?"

This is the question which confronts every preacher and speaker continually. And the most obvious answer to this question is:—

By reading and digesting and making your own the Greatest Sermons of the World.

Here is what Henry Ward Beecher said on this subject:

"I was a great reader of the old sermonizers. . . . I received a vast amount of instruction from those old sermonizers who were as familiar to me as my own name. I preached a great many sermons while reading these old men, and upon their discourses I have founded the framework of my own."

There is no better way to gather the material and to prepare the presentation of a sermon than by assimilating the best sermons that have been preached in the past, and that still have a vital and never-ending appeal.

These great sermons of the world are collected in this volume. Each sermon is preceded by a brief biographical sketch about the preacher of that sermon. . . . $3.50

PROBLEM OF EVIL AND SUFFERINGS, THE

By Jeremiah Zimmerman, D.D., LL.D.

A Solution and the Antidote

The author's supreme motive in writing this book has been to inspire faith in God, by justifying the ways of God with man. He states that the antidote for all the evils of life is to seek the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and ever to keep Christ in view. For He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life eternal. $2.00

WHENCE COMEST THOU? WHITHER GOEST THOU?

TREATISE ON CONSCIENCE, A

By Charles Scaer, A.M.

"The various and wrong conceptions of the term Conscience, and the indifference toward its functions in practical life has induced me to write and to have published this treatise."—The Author.

The book is based upon the logic of moral and mental Science, yet in harmony with the Bible. 50c

CAN AN EVOLUTIONIST BE A CHRISTIAN?

By W. Lee Rector

A conservative treatise on the question of naturalism versus supernaturalism. The author aims to show the irreconcilability of the two. He seeks to show that the race defeats itself in trusting blindly to natural law, and that the function of natural law cannot, in all the ages, redeem the race. $2.50

REVELATION IN THE LIGHT OF HISTORY AND EXPERIENCE

BEFORE, BEHIND (AND BIGGER THAN) THE BIBLE

By Samuel Hamill Wood

In this book the author expresses the idea that some kind of intelligent power, in the affairs of the universe of which this world is only part, is far older than the Bible; that this power is not merely older than the Bible, but that it is also greater than any other power in the universe; and that the Bible, in any language becomes for us the greatest book in the world for the study of this eternal power of God, if only we use not knowledge but wisdom in its study.

By retelling such familiar Bible stories as those of Jacob and Esau, Moses, The Book of Esther, etc., the author brings out the fundamental ideas as expressed above. . . $1.50

THE THREE EEE'S

A Treatise of New Thought

By Rev. Clement D. Brown, M.A.

This treatise is a protest against so much guesswork that is written under the name of Science. The author states that the world is "flooded with the stuff"; that almost every day some new wonderful discovery is chronicled as having been made in one part or other of the country; that pre-historic skeletons of animals that are supposed to have lived, not only before all history, but millions and millions of years ago, are exhibited by men who know nothing about them.

The book is divided into three parts, entitled Earthy, Ether and Evolution respectively. It shows that all the guesswork produced in the name of Science does not affect true religion. $1.00

POSTULATES OF PERFECTIBILITY OR CREATIVE PERSONALITY

By Philip David Bookstaber, M.A., Ph.D.

This volume is a study of reflective thinking and emphasizes Process as the explanation of knowledge. This is most manifest when the author explains how the creative factor of the postulate has aided the Process towards ever higher orders of perfection in the fields of science, psychology, philosophy and religion. Thus in the discussion of Evolution, the author emphasizes Evolution as a mode of explanation and as a Process from which, among other inherent concepts, we have gotten method, variation and personality as the outstanding interpretive factors. $2.00

PLANT HUNTING

By Ernest H. Wilson, M.A., V.M.H.

Keeper of the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University

The publishers consider this is Mr. Wilson's greatest book. It reveals, for the first time, how strange parts of the world were combed by intrepid explorers for beauties that grace American gardens.

Here are two volumes, filled with adventure, glowing with the ardor of the explorer. Mr. Wilson has made seven plant hunting trips — to Africa, the Tropics, Australia, New Zealand, China, Korea, Japan, India, the East Indies, and other lands, penetrating into the secret places from which he has gathered more than 2700 horticultural specimens for American gardens.

The details of his own explorations, and of those hardy pioneers in plant hunting, form a bright page of history and adventure. As Keeper of the Arnold Arboretum, Mr. Wilson is the highest authority in this country and one of the world's greatest horticulturists. Packed in the volumes is a wealth of information of immense value to the professional horticulturist and a source of never-ending delight to the amateur.

The book is published in two handsomely bound volumes, boxed, and of de luxe character. It contains 128 beautiful full page illustrations, most of which are from photographs taken by Mr. Wilson and have not heretofore been published. Autographed edition, boxed $15.00

ARISTOCRATS OF THE GARDEN

By Ernest H. Wilson, M.A., V.M.H.

Author of "America's Greatest Garden"

"Aristocrats of the Garden" is valuable to both the amateur gardener and the professional.

In this volume will be found the origin and history, names and idiosyncrasies, propagation and development, usefulness and beauty of those plants which it is the hope and desire of all garden-lovers to see growing in their own gardens—the Aristocrats.

Each group has a chapter to itself, in which the author has packed the wealth of information gathered in a lifetime of pioneering in strange places, and of practical experience in the great gardens of the world, particularly in America's Greatest Garden, the Arnold Arboretum.

The book includes: The Story of the Modern Rose—Consider the Lilies—Midseason Flowering Trees and Shrubs—The best of the Hardy Climbing Shrubs—Ornamental Fruited Trees and Shrubs—Broad-Leaved Evergreens for Northern Gardens—New Chinese Trees and Shrubs for the Pacific Slope and Other Favored Regions—Early Spring-Flowering Trees and Shrubs—Japanese Cherries and Asiatic Crabapples—In Lilacdom—New Herbaceous Plants from China—Hardy Rhododendrons—The Story of the Davidia.

One of the most striking and valuable features of the work is the inclusion of twenty-six beautiful full-page illustrations, selected from a collection of several thousand by the author, and made from photographs taken by Mr. Wilson.

AMERICA'S GREATEST GARDEN

By Ernest H. Wilson, M.A., V.M.H.

Mr. Wilson's world wide fame as a plant explorer is equaled by the fame of his writings. In "America's Greatest Garden" Mr. Wilson is at his best. Love of his subject is evident on every page. The style is easy and the whole work is rich in charm. In language that is simple and brilliant he tells the story, or rather sings the song, of beauty in flower and fruit, in bud, leaf and bark.

This book is a compendium of the Arnold Arboretum's experience in the acclimatization of tree, shrub, vine, conifer and broad-leaf evergreen, which all who garden may use for their own guidance and advantage.

In all there are eighteen chapters and fifty beautiful full page illustrations, a preface, and a frontispiece portrait of Prof. Charles S. Sargent, the man whose genius has made America's Greatest Garden.

The book is handsomely bound in dark red cloth covers stamped with gold design and contains fifty beautiful illustrations. $3.00

De Luxe Edition

"America's Greatest Garden" is also published in a De Luxe Edition, limited to 1200 copies, each personally autographed by Mr. Wilson. Name of the owner stamped in gold on the cover. . . . . $10.00 (boxed)

GARDENS ALL THE YEAR

By Ida Withers Harrison

The keynote of this book is that there are gardens somewhere all the time, and if we cannot visit them in the flesh, we can make excursions to them in the spirit. We can look backward to them, or forward with dream gardens to those that are to come. Or, we can use memory gardens. The true garden lover finds no end to love of flowers and interest in all things growing, defying all limits of time and space, and must be a true lover of the world. $1.50

EDITORIAL SILENCE

By Robert T. Morris

Mr. Morris in his characteristic brilliant and vigorous style unmasks the forces behind the supression and publication of news, especially in the "yellow" press. The author sees the press as a force for evil, where it might readily be a force for good. The book takes the reader behind the scenes of newspaper publication, revealing the sources of the filth that finds its way to the breakfast table every morning. The book is filled with incidents from a reporter's notebook, and represents an intensive study of a growing menace to our civilization. $2.50

LESSONS FROM THE OUT-OF-DOORS

THE POETS OF THE FUTURE—Volume Eight
A College Anthology for 1924 - 1925
Edited by Henry T. Schnittkind, Ph.D.

This collection of verse has attained a wide following and is gaining in prominence each year, as it is, to a large degree, a forecast of what the future of poetry in this country will be. A number of the students included in former volumes of the College Anthology, such as Stephen Vincent Benet, Babette Deutsch, John McClure, have already gained nation-wide distinction in the field of poetry.

The edition for this year contains over 150 poems and an honorable mention list of 290 names of those whose poems rank next highest in literary merit, representing about 200 colleges and universities in all. $2.50

FOR YOU

By Jennie M. Tabb

The poems in this book are simple in subject and in structure. There are little quatrains that speak of dear home ties and the bonds of friendship, a few sonnets that reach the heart in various moods, and a few songs and poems in a lighter vein. One of the chief attractions of the verse of Father Tabb (the author's uncle) was its brevity. In this characteristic these poems resemble his—they are so short and so simple that they are easily impressed upon the reader's memory. $1.00

BRANCHES TO THE SKY

By Sylvia Bateman

A volume of verse in the modern vein to delight every lover of poetry and every spirit keen-zested for the delicate images, the high moods, the jubilant colors of life itself. . $1.25

Juvenile

MOONBEAM AND STARLIGHT

By Florence E. Eakman

A group of beautiful poems for children, depicting in easily understood verses the daily occurrences of every child's life. Illustrated. $1.50

ALICE AND THE STORK

By Henry T. Schnittkind, Ph.D.

An ultra-modern fairy tale. . . . . 50 cents

Miscellaneous

HISTORIC CHURCHES OF THE WORLD

By Robert B. Ludy, M.D.

Robert B. Ludy, surgeon, lecturer and author, has gathered together in a single volume the stories of these historic places of worship—nearly 200 of them. No more interesting perspective of the history of the development of a Place of Worship has ever been presented. . . $5.00 (boxed)

MESSAGES OF MUSIC

By Henry Brenner, O.S.B.

This volume consists of explanations, in story form, of three hundred compositions of music. These stories are written with the particular purpose of enabling music lovers and musicians to enter into the correct mood-atmosphere of the compositions in question. The author has had the advantage of being reared in an atmosphere of artistic beauty by relatives of highly musical aspirations. These circumstances awakened those sympathies with the beauties of nature that have since spurred him on to spend the time and labor necessary for the completion of so practical and thorough a book as "Messages of Music." $5.00

ADAM AND EVE

By Oscar T. Crosby

In this book the author presents the probable origin of the story of Adam and Eve—a story which has commanded the attention of millions. The book is the result of the author's exploration of the regions in which lies the probable site of the Garden of Eden. $1.25

NOT SPEAKING OF OPERATIONS

By John Finch Barnhill

A book of good cheer, showing that hospitals are not always places of misery and distress. Dr. Barnhill brings to light the sunshine, hope and joy found in large measure, and reveals the optimism among many who have been long and often hopelessly ill. Happy little Nick unable to walk, Peggy the cripple and Baby Billie are characters that will long be remembered. $2.00

LOVE ENCHAINED AND OTHER PLAYS

By G. M. Pellettieri

Highly dramatic, well-developed plots, originally written in Italian and translated by the author. $2.00

TRAGEDY OF HAMLET, THE

By Henry Frank

A psychological study of the play; twelve photogravures representing great actors of the play from Garrick to Sothern. $2.00

UKRAINIAN FOLK SONGS

By Humphrey T. Kowalsky

Unusually attractive to the music connoisseur. Gives the history of Ukrainian Folk Songs and many other little-known historical facts about that country. . . . $1.00

THE DEVELOPMENT AND THE PRESENT STATUS OF EDUCATION IN THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

By Rev. Vincent R. Catapang

A survey of the development of education in the Philippine Islands with an account of the Philippine descent, traditions, customs and ancient culture of the Filipinos. . . $2.00
